

Capital Says "Assistant President" Richberg to Be Out Within Year

WASHINGTON—Among blasé spectators who watch the clash of New Deal gladiators, even money is now being offered that Donald Richberg will be out of the arena within a year.

This does not necessarily mean discredit to Richberg. But it does illustrate two things: First no man who wins the title of "Assistant President" lasts long; second, the spotlight of public attention is now focussed upon Richberg as on no other New Dealer except the President.

No man now has more power—outside the White House—than Richberg; and no man has achieved that power by a more fascinating, meteoric career.

It so happens that Richberg began that career with the only other man who approaches him in New Deal power. Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, PWA administrator, petroleum dictator, and executive of a score of other agencies, once was a law partner of Richberg.

They had built up a thriving practice when suddenly Richberg threw down his books, locked his desk, and went out to start a crusade against Sam Insull, Chicago politician and the big business leaders who controlled them.

And he was still a crusading lawyer—as chief attorney for the Railroad Brotherhoods—when he came to Washington.

No wonder that cold shivers ran down the spinal columns of business! No wonder that several Tory groups adopted as their battle-cry: "Oust Richberg!"

Right About

Richberg has changed a lot since then and now enjoys reverse praise and veneration. Business calls him a "wise guy," while his old labor friends scarcely speak to him.

The change has made Richberg the Number Two man in the Administration; eventually it will cause his downfall.

It is hard to diagnose the reasons for this change. But it is not hard to diagnose the reasons why he became "Assistant President."

Richberg is one of the ablest men around Roosevelt. He is as quick as lightning. He has a profound background. He has a powerful personality—charm, understanding, a sense of humor. No matter how much you may disagree with Richberg, you can't help liking him.

But perhaps more important than all these, Richberg sees eye-to-eye with the President. Like Roosevelt, Richberg essentially is a middle-of-the-road man. As he recently described himself:

"My liberalism is less radical than it is reputed to be, and more liberal than some say it is."

That is penetrating self-analysis. Richberg is neither anti-labor, nor pro-industry. Actually he is among the President's "Left" advisers. But he is so much more conservative than he used to be, that showmen of Labor abuse have been heaped upon his head.

Vituperation

Labor charges many things: That Richberg's pussyfooting on Section 7a of the NRA is responsible for the present chaos and misunderstanding on the labor front.

That Richberg OK'd in the steel

MRS. REICHE SERIOUS AFTER FALL

HEAD INJURED IN FALL OVER PORCH RAILING

Well Known Woman Unconscious in Berger Hospital; Loses Balance

WAS DUSTING RUG Lands on Head on Ground 14 Feet Below

Mrs. Margaret D. Reiche, wife of M. F. Reiche, Jr., W. Main-st. implement dealer, is in a precarious condition in Berger hospital after falling head-first from the back porch of her second story residence at 9 a. m. Thursday.

Mrs. Reiche late this afternoon had not regained consciousness. It was feared she may be suffering from a fractured skull and broken neck although these injuries have not been definitely established.

FOUND BY GROCE

She was found unconscious on the ground at the rear of the implement store by Harry H. Groce, E. Union-st. employe of Mr. Reiche who had gone out to pull a cake of ice up to the second floor. This was a daily custom.

Mr. Groce tried to lift her to carry her into the store but was unable to do so. He called Mr. Reiche and George Grubb and all three carried her in. Dr. Howard Jones was summoned and the injured woman was taken to the hospital in the Albaugh Co. ambulance.

LOST BALANCE

She was shaking a rug white standing on the back porch when she apparently lost her balance and fell over the porch rail. The drop measures about 14 feet. Mrs. Reiche, who is about 70, struck the stony ground on the right side of her head.

Her condition is considered extremely grave with recovery doubtful.

END OF GANG IS THOUGHT NEAR

Nelson's Widow Reported To Have Given Information Concerning Others.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Armed with information wrung from Mrs. Helen Gillis, widow of the slain George "Baby Face" Nelson, the department of justice today was ready to deal a crushing blow at the remnants of the John Dillinger gang of desperadoes.

Repeated questioning by federal agents in the seven days since her surrender has yielded vital clues concerning the possible whereabouts and habits of the Dillinger gang survivors, it was reported.

A voluntary assistant in the interrogation, according to reliable reports, was Mrs. Juliette Fitzsimmons, sister of Public Enemy No. 1 Nelson. Mrs. Fitzsimmons arranged the surrender of the fragile 21-year-old widow one week ago after the furious gun battle at Barrington, Ill., in which Nelson killed Federal Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Agent Herman Hollis before he was fatally wounded.

With the information yielded by Mrs. Gillis federal operatives apparently were confident that a clean-up of the last handful of Dillinger arch-criminals was imminent today. Chief among the gangsters still at large are John Hamilton, the nation's new Public Enemy No. 1, and Alvin Karpis, wanted for the ransom kidnapping of Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker.

NEW CANNING FIRM PLANNED IN STATE

DEFIANCE, Dec. 6.—A new canning plant for Ohio was assured today after the Franks Canning company of Montpelier announced it would build a local plant as soon as business men here provide clear title to land they will donate for the factory.

At peak production, according to the plans worked out, the canning operations will employ 500 persons. Tomatoes and kidney beans will be the farm products canned.

HERALD TO PRINT LETTERS TO SANTA

The Herald again intends to print letters written by children of the city and county to that old favorite Santa Claus. Every year many children write their notes to Old Saint Nick telling him what they want for Christmas.

CITY TREASURY IN 'SHAKY' FIX

General Fund Cut Considerably With Source of Next Finances in Doubt.

A drab picture of the city's financial situation was given to council Wednesday evening by Ben H. Gordon chairman of the finance committee.

The general fund today shows a balance of $6,296.82 but council in its meeting Wednesday voted to appropriate $820 for miscellaneous bills and to finance several departments to the first of the year. In addition to this slice from the general fund there remain $644 in outstanding bills for poor relief.

It is possible the city will receive some money from the state January, there may be some more money later from beer tax distribution, but the next settlement of county taxes will not be until April or May so the utmost economy is necessary if the city is to stay out of the red even a short while. Salaries and current operating expenses must be met out of the much depleted general fund.

FUNDS TRANSFERRED The city with all advances taken out received $16,254.30 from the distribution earlier this week. That fund was cut to $6,296.82 by payment of current bills totaling $4,223.78, transfer of $1,000 to the hospital fund and $4,733.70 to the sinking fund.

Other balances on hand include $1,781.18 in the library fund, $836.48 in the auto street repair, $1,091.08 in the gasoline tax and $1,169.52 in the hospital fund.

Relief bills unpaid include $268.40 for rent, food and coal; $171.60 for physicians; $24 for ambulance and $180 for burials. A bill for $113.65 was read from the Southern Ohio Electric Co. for work on traffic lights including transfers, etc. Miss Lillian Young, auditor, reported that she had enough money in a fund to pay this bill with the exception of $50; council appropriated the necessary $50 from the general fund.

Other funds appropriated to tide several departments over until the first of the year were; solicitor, $15; civil service commission, $5; sewers and ditches, $400 and lands, buildings, fuel and light, $300.

A sum of $25 was also appropriated to pay C. A. Leist who represented Safety Director L. T. Shafer in the suspension proceedings against Officer Carl Radloff.

Another $25 was ordered paid to Frank Thomas for damages caused to his crops by water from the Smith ditch.

Rep. Robert Crosser, of Cleveland, announced his candidacy in response to the urging of his friends.

His statement said "the important consideration is that those supporting me feel that by my election the principle of fundamental Democracy would be effectively promoted."

SNOW ON WAY

By International News Service. With sub-freezing temperatures and the immediate prospect of light snow, Ohio today was held in that threatened to be the first protracted "cold wave" of the winter today.

"Continued cold for several days" was the forecast of W. H. Alexander, government forecaster at Columbus.

Jury Denies Her Pleas

Grace Mitchell

When Grace Mitchell, Pittsburgh radio singer, first begged a jury to spare the life of 21-year-old Russell Swiger for a murder committed during a filling station holdup at Zanesville, O., the jury disagreed. Her plea went unheeded at his second trial and now Swiger has been condemned to die in the electric chair. Miss Mitchell denied she loved Swiger but stated the youth had "showered her with attention."

TOENSMER AGAIN HEADS MINISTERS

Rev. Emil Toensmer of the First Presbyterian church was re-elected president of the Pickaway-co Ministerial association at its meeting Thursday morning at his church.

Rev. Herman A. Sayre of the Methodist church was named vice president and Rev. W. A. Moore of the Williamsport Methodist church secretary and treasurer.

Dr. Donald Tippet of the Bexley M. E. church was the speaker using as his subject "The Christian Philosophy of Life."

Mrs. Fannie B. Kirk, executive secretary of the public health league, also attended explaining the Christmas seal sale.

66 EXECUTED BY SOVIET GUN SQUAD

MOSCOW, Dec. 6.—More executions within the next few days appeared certain today as police, following the shooting of 65 men and one woman "counter revolutionaries," pressed their campaign to wipe out every enemy of the Bolshevik regime.

Five more, arrested with the 66 already put to death are held for "further investigation" before their punishment is meted out. A sixth, Leonid Nikolaev, the assassin of Sergei Kirov of the Politburo, is being kept alive by physicians so that a full exposure may be wrung from him before he is executed.

Today's mass executions were carried out with the speed ordered by the government following the slaying of Kirov.

Prince of Peace Contest to be Held Here Sunday

The Pickaway-co Prince of Peace Declaration contest will be held Sunday evening, Dec. 9, in the local First Methodist Episcopal church at 7 o'clock. This contest is a part of the state-wide Prince of Peace Declaration contest held by the Ohio Council of Churches.

A silver medal will be given by the Ohio Council of Churches to the winner of this contest and the winner will compete in the congressional district contest to be held in January for a gold medal.

The congressional district contest winners will compete in the state contest, the winner of first place receiving $200 in cash and a four year free tuition college scholarship, the winner of second place $100 and a two year free

SENATE READY TO BALLOT ON INCOME TAXES

Fate of Tax Program Hinges on Outcome; Defeat Is Predicted

"N O T EMERGENCY"

Foes Say Tax Not in Effect Until 1936

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—On a vote the Ohio senate was expected to take late today on the controversial Ward income tax bill hinged the fate of the administration's entire emergency taxation program.

Should the bill muster the 17 votes necessary to passage, the end of the long struggle for revenue to replace temporarily that lost by enactment of the 10-mill real estate tax limitation amendment, would be in sight.

But in the event of adverse action by the senate on the income tax, house members were reported ready to offer a resolution for immediate adjournment of the "lame duck" session. This, however, would throw the whole financial crisis into the lap of the succeeding legislature and come dangerously near precipitating a breakdown in poor relief next January 1.

ONLY TWO BALLOT

Whatever optimism hitherto existed about the chances of the income tax surviving a vote on the floor, went up in smoke when only two of the 11 members of the senate tax committee voted on the roll call to report the bill out and recommended its passage. They were Sen. D. J. Gunsett (D) Van Wert, chairman, and Sen. J. G. Lowery (R) New Concord.

Continuation of the roll call finally netted the requisite majority to prevent the measure from expiring in committee.

WHAT... COUNCIL DID

Gave Service Director W. M. Justus and Engineer Harry Griner permission to prepare plans for construction of a 30-inch sewer as far as the Marfield land south of the city. It will be placed under the PIERA if possible.

Heard a petition of S. Pickaway-at residents urging a sanitary sewer between Union and Huston-sts. The petition was signed by I. B. Barnes, Charles H. Niles, G. W. Limebaugh, Blanche Weaver, H. H. Goeller, Charles O. Caskey, Mrs. J. C. Thomas, S. C. Grant, Anna Gates, James Kinser and Wesley Justus.

Received a report from Mayor Cady of fines of $23.50 and licenses of $1 collected during November, and also heard that collections at Berger hospital in the same month were $1,296.10.

Listened to Solicitor Leist report that S. C. Grant, coal dealer, had requested that scales be used to weigh coal coming into the city by truck, which Grant said complied with the code. Leist also reported that he had collected $13 due Berger hospital.

HARLOW FILES SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Jean Harlow of the platinum hair today was seeking a divorce from her third husband, Hal Rosson, cameraman.

Miss Harlow charged Rosson with extreme mental cruelty. She charged he was sullen, irritable and ungenerous.

Rosson refused to assist the star in entertaining for her friends and associates, the complaint pointed out.

The star contends that her husband was so unthoughtful as to often read in the couple's bedroom until late in the night, preventing Miss Harlow from obtaining the sleep she so badly needed while working at the studios.

SHANER FUNERAL

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. in the Lancaster English Lutheran church for Jacob Shaner, brother of L. T. Shaner, who died in Lancaster hospital Wednesday morning.

County Students at Ohio State Elect Pat Kirwin

As a part of the Ohio State university organization of county clubs, Pickaway-co students at the university have organized by naming Pat J. Kirwin, S. Court-st., a junior in the School of Journalism, president.

Other officers are Mary Ruth Tolbert, Pickaway-twp, vice-president; Floyd Graves, Pickaway-twp, secretary, and Donald May, E. Franklin-st., treasurer.

Edward S. Drake, a native of Pickaway-co, manager of the university's Ohio Union, center of recreation activities for male students, is adviser to the local students.

The chief objectives of the county clubs, which include all the counties except Franklin and Cuyahoga, are to develop loyalty by interpreting the university to their home communities and to their legislative representatives, and by encouraging the interest of the country's best high school students in the university.

The clubs are also designed to act as a means of widening acquaintances or cementing friendships, and to make available a moderate number of social events for out-of-town students.

The newly-formed club of local students expects to meet with the Pickaway-co Ohio State Alumni Association at its meeting after Christmas.

PLANES STILL HUNT AIRMEN

Commandant of Naval Area Files Report of Search For Ulm and Mates.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A graphic report of the vain search made by American warships and naval planes in the desolate waters of the mid-Pacific for the missing Australian flyer, Lt. T. P. Ulm, and his two companions, was received at the navy department today from Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commandant of the 14th naval district at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Admiral Yarnell said 25 naval vessels, assisted by planes, had searched the waters northeastward of the Hawaiian Islands continuously throughout yesterday. The vessels and planes went out as far as 300 miles from the islands and searched over a radius of 200 miles from the islands of Kauai and Maui.

Neither the powerful telescopes in the hands of the keen-sighted seamen in the crow's nests of the warships nor the observers in the naval planes found any sign of the missing flyers, Admiral Yarnell said.

However, the navy, he added, is continuing the search. Twenty fast naval planes were ordered out today on a north, north-west and southwest course of the island of Oahu and south and southwest of Hawaii.

The Nauiucous were under instructions to cover a radius of 250 miles in the hope that the lonely waters beneath them might give some sign of the missing airmen.

One hopeful sign in Admiral Yarnell's report was that the waters around Hawaii were comparatively calm and weather visibility conditions good.

Sued for Divorce

Gladys George

According to Gladys George, above, Broadway star being sued for divorce by her husband, Ward Fowler, Massachusetts paper manufacturer, a fellow actor, Leonard Penn, named as co-respondent, was in her room only to "help bandage her sick cat." Penn also affirmed he had been taking care of the ailing Tabby.

PENSION FUND BEING FORMED

Council Votes to Revise 1935 Budget To Place Three Under Retirement.

Another step was taken by council toward establishment of a pension system for police and firemen Wednesday evening when the 1935 appropriation ordinance, was revised to include $1,200 for police pensions and $600 for firemen's pensions.

All the money would come from the general fund within the 10 mill tax limitation.

Under the present plan Police Chief W. H. Warner, Desk Officer Thomas McManamy and Fire Inspector John S. Baer would be retired but there seems to be some question about Chief Warner because of his years of service. His age would permit him to be retired but his years on the police force would not, it is said.

It will be necessary for police and firemen's retirement boards to set the rules and regulations covering age and years of service.

The police will be represented by Officers William McCrady and Raymond Smith with Glen J. Nickerson representing the "cops" as the lay member. The councilmen on the board are W. M. Reid and Julius Helweggen but they have not yet named their lay member.

The firemen will be represented by Chief Talmer Wise and Robert Wolfe with James Wickenselmer as the layman. Councilmen are Ben H. Gordon and C. O. Leist with their lay member yet to be named.

DOG POISONER IS WORKING IN CITY

Residents of E. Mound and E. Union-st. should guard their dogs closely. A dog poisoner is at work, it is reported, and several pets in the neighborhoods between Court and Pickaway-sts are now suffering from poisoning.

There is no meaner person on the earth than a dog poisoner and his or her arrest would certainly follow by prosecution.

THIRD BANK OPENS CHRISTMAS 'CLUB'

Another Circleville bank has added the Christmas Savings club to its service with the Second National Bank announcing that its 1935 club is now open and deposits are being received.

This makes three banks in Circleville with this service as the Savings and the Third National have conducted these clubs for several years.

ROOF CATCHES FIRE

UTILITY RATES AGAIN TALKED BY CITY DADS

Gordon and Reid Urge Council to Consider Action for Lower Costs

BOND ISSUE SEEN

Phipps Writes Concerning Pipe-Line Firm

The utility rate question was tossed back into the laps of councilmen Wednesday evening by Ben H. Gordon and W. M. Reid who urged that council begin negotiations with the Southern Ohio Electric Co. for a new current rate and that the city dads should start action to eventually construct municipally owned water and electric plants.

Gordon brought up the power rate issue by remarking that the rate with the electric company has only 18 months to go and that "council should not wait until the last minute to start negotiations."

MAY VOTE ON BONDS

Reid declined to have the municipal plant issue placed in committee but said that he believes a bond issue will be voted upon in the election next fall for one and possibly two city-owned and operated plants.

"If we can't get water and electric rates down where they ought to be in comparison with other cities," Councilman Gordon declared, "we should put the matter up to a vote of the people." He recalled President Roosevelt's interest in the Tennessee Valley project when he urged that all small towns to get in line with the TVA.

A little earlier in the evening was the topic with Solicitor Carl Leist reading a communication from W. H. Phipps, president of the Universal Pipe Line Co., which organization has been given a contract to bring 45-cent gas to this city.

Nothing had been heard from the pipe line company so at the last council meeting Leist was instructed to write Mr. Phipps.

READY TO PROCEED

Phipps' reply was that his company had encountered difficulty with its preliminary financing but that $60,000 had been placed in the coffers of the company for current expenses so that the Universal was ready to proceed with its work of laying pipes from south of the Ohio river into Ohio where several cities have granted contracts.

Phipps' letter said that the permanent financing was never in question and that action would start immediately.

HANCOCK COUNTY JUDGE SUCCUMBS

FINDLAY, Dec. 6.—Pneumonia today took the life of Hancock-co's only common pleas judge—Judge William F. Duncan.

Judge Duncan died early this morning. He had been suffering from arthritis for the last two years and had been inactive on the bench since the spring term.

Judge Duncan was elected to the common pleas bench here when first common pleas courts were created for each county. Previously he had served by appointment of Governor Nash as judge in the tenth judicial district.

Judge Duncan frequently served in other courts hearing important cases, among them the Cleveland court case of the East Ohio Gas Co., involving an important decision. The verdict in this case was carried by the company to the supreme court where Judge Duncan's decision was upheld.

UNITED STATES TELLS JAPAN NAVAL PARITY DANGEROUS

RACE CERTAIN, DAVIS CLAIMS

Roosevelt For All-Around Reduction of Naval Armaments, He Declares.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The United States today bluntly warned Japan that its insistence upon naval parity with the American and British fleets threatens world peace and may precipitate a naval race. American Ambassador Norman H. Davis, in a luncheon address to a group of American correspondents here, declared the United States believes abandonment of the present ration system governing the limitation of navies "would lead to conditions of insecurity, of international suspicion, and of costly competition, with no real advantage to any nation."

ORDERED BY HULL

Davis's speech represented the first public pronouncement made by the United States concerning the naval situation since the opening of the naval discussions here. It was made upon instructions from Secretary of State Hull at Washington, and was designed as a last-minute appeal to Japan to reconsider its declared intention to denounce the Washington naval treaty.

Declaring the Japanese plan for full naval equality would not give "equality of seas," Davis said: "The principle adopted (in the Washington treaty) was that of equality of security. Any basic alteration in this system must of necessity alter the security thus established."

"The fundamental issue in the naval conversations now in progress is essentially as follows: Is the equilibrium that was established by the system worked out in the Washington treaties to be continued or is it to be upset?"

Taking Japan to task for its assertion that the superiority of the American and British navies constituted a menace to its security, Davis declared none of the powers would have agreed to the existing treaties if it felt that "its national security was thereby menaced or impaired."

Pointing out the ratio system has been the only successful system ever found to reduce and limit navies, Davis added the United States would "greatly regret and regard as most unfortunate the destruction of this system of naval limitation which has proved generally beneficial and which has not jeopardized the security of any nation."

Davis disclosed for the first time publicly that, as chief of the American delegation to the London naval conversations, he had proposed on instructions from President Roosevelt a "substantial all-around reduction in naval armaments."

Hungarians Ordered To Quit Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Dec. 6.—All Hungarians in Yugoslavia today received curt notice to leave the country within 48 hours, exceptions being made only in the case of those Hungarians employed by registered firms.

The order, coming upon the heels of a several weeks long drive against Hungarians as a result of the Marseilles assassinations, created a new tense international situation.

A possible serious incident threatened to develop at the Yugoslavian-Hungarian border near Horgis, where 350 Hungarians awaited entry into their native land, but were refused permission to cross the border by order of the Hungarian government.

EX-CONVICT GIVEN LIFE PRISON TERM

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 6.—A life sentence—Michigan's most severe penalty—was imposed today upon Leroy Carson, 24-year-old former convict who confessed the wanton slaying of Leone Love, 12, yesterday.

Carson, former inmate of the Ionia state reformatory, will be on his way to Marquette prison less than 36 hours after the murder.

He confessed that he waylaid the little girl on her way to a rural school a few miles outside of Lansing, made advances to her, and shot her with a small hunting rifle when she became frightened and started to cry.

Her body was found stuffed in a culvert under a railroad track.

3 DIE IN CRASH

RICHMOND, Ind., Dec. 6.—Two physicians and a young woman newspaper columnist lay dead today, victims of a tragic attempt to make a night landing when their plane at the unlighted Richmond airport.

The airplane, piloted by Howard Maxwell of Indianapolis, plunged 300 feet to the ground west of the airport last night and burst into flames. The dead:

Dr. A. M. Mendenhall, of Indianapolis.
Miss Evelyn Mendenhall of Richmond, his daughter.

Dr. John Carmack, Indianapolis.
Pilot Maxwell was thrown clear of the wreckage. Seriously injured, he was rushed to a hospital here.

The party was returning to Indianapolis from a medical meeting at Detroit when the landing was attempted.

SENATE READY

conceded the income tax but scant chance of being adopted. Most damaging argument used against the bill was that no revenue could be derived from it before March, 1936, consequently it has no place in a strictly emergency tax program designed to survive only until the next general assembly can work out a permanent solution to Ohio's fiscal ills.

Only Senator Lowery championed the tax. Unless the legislature voluntarily accepts the income tax in principle, he said, the electorate at the next election will pass one and "it probably will be a rather radical type with rates far in excess of those in this bill."

BACK TO COUNTIES

The bill comes up for a vote in the senate in much the same form as the house passed it. Chief difference is in allocation of the tax. The house gave it to the schools, while the senate tax group voted to send it all back to counties where it originates.

Estimates of what revenue the income tax would net vary so widely none can be singled out as authentic, but they run as high as $15,000,000. On the other hand, it is pretty generally agreed that the 3 per cent bracket retail tax will produce in excess of 60 million dollars, while the one per cent increase in utilities excise taxes, also adopted by both houses, is calculated to bring in $2,250,000 in new revenue.

Before voting 24 to 2 for adoption of the utilities bill, which the house passed last spring, the senate changed the allocation of the new revenue, taking it away from the schools and earmarking it back to the counties to use for mothers' pensions, blind relief, soldiers and sailors homes, care of tubercular patients and related purposes.

Win Back Pep... Vigor... Vitality
Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of kidney tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scant amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, humpback, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

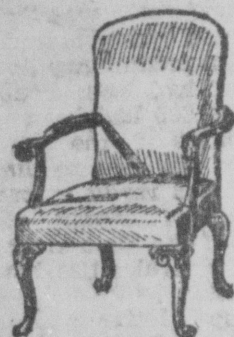

If kidneys don't empty 8 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes; for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

PATTERN 5262

A cross stitch picture has a delightfully decorative quality that makes it fit into any room. This charming pair—either one alone would make a handsome gift—can also be used as a decoration on a pillow or bag. They can be done in a variety of colors or in two shades of one color to get a silhouette effect, as for instance, black and gray, two shades of brown, green or blue. Each picture measures 6x8 inches. The popular 8 to the inch crosses are used and you can do these pictures in little time.

In pattern 5262 you will find a transfer pattern of two pictures 6x8 inches; a color chart and key; material requirements and directions for making the picture.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

A LIKEABLE LITTLE LAND

FINLAND, it is reported, would like to have a loan from the United States and we should be certain that she gets it without undue formality or delay. There are important reasons why we should be generous to Finland, a rugged little land that has done well with limited opportunities.

Under the czars the Finns endured a cruel vassalage. Since then they have come along in admirable fashion, notwithstanding the handicaps of vicious winters, unproductive soil and limited natural resources.

In many respects, Finland's standards of living are equal to our own. Her school system, through which illiteracy has virtually been eliminated, is superb, and power has been made available to the people at limited cost. Fine public buildings and homes have been erected.

And, what is of supreme importance, is the scrupulous regard Finland has for her national honor. We lent money liberally during the war and after to many nations. But only Finland pays.

Announcement has just been made that she will pay, as usual, her December 15 semi-annual installment. Other nations, under a far greater obligation to us by reason of our help with money and on the firing line, will pay nothing.

There is good reason, then, that we should feel kindly toward Finland.

REPEAL—A YEAR LATER

PROHIBITION repeal is a year old and is due for national appraisal. Discounting natural prejudices, there is honest difference of opinion as to how well it has worked. There is no question, however, that repeal has contributed largely to public self-respect by restoring personal liberties the nation never should have taken away. On the material side, the Federal government has a new, or restored, source of revenue in excess of $300,000,000 annually, which is bond interest on $10,000,000,000.

However, it is generally believed taxes must be reduced so as to cheapen liquors. Otherwise bootlegging will continue to flourish.

On the social side the benefits of repeal are positive. Drinking no longer has to be furtive because illegal. It no longer need be feverish, begotten by uncertainty where the next drink is coming from once the oasis of the speakeasy is left behind. Drinking is not greater under repeal than before. This is the testimony of the best trained observers. Repeal has removed concept of drinking as a "high adventure" to youth, which, generally speaking, is no longer subjected to insidious efforts at debauchment by bootleggers.

The setup under repeal is admittedly far from perfect, but at least at the close of the first year it is better than what went before.

Typical adult reaction to the offer of new knowledge: "Aw, hooley!"

And yet, if there were no dead-beats, where would a young doctor get any practice?

How strange to expect little kids to learn when you can't even persuade adults to do it.

A critic tells us that women aren't as charming as they used to be. And green peaches aren't so good, either.

We can imagine Mrs. Roosevelt's feelings when the White House neighbors begin running in to borrow the new gold-plated dishes.

It is fortunate that we aren't all smart. There must be committees to do thankless jobs, and somebody must be chairman.

The climb to success is easy. You find a rich and lazy old guy and then keep saying: "How wonderful you are, sir."

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXVI

"Are there better opportunities with Purcell?"
"Say, listen, Mrs. Rutledge, they're leaving Dunsforth behind so fast they'll be lapping around on his tail before he knows it! The only thing Dunsforth's got is the Rutledge Mask."

"What is your ambition?"
"I'll be factory manager, sure enough. And I can get stock in the company—yes, I know that's a pit-fall with some concerns but Purcell is a white man."

Mrs. Rutledge smiled. "Caroline has worked magic for both of us," she said. "I think I'll go up now. I'm quite calm, don't you think?"

"You look happy enough to keep her from suspecting the danger she was in," he assured her.

"I'll ask the doctor to let you see her as soon as it's safe," she promised him.
It was a week later that he was allowed to go in for just five minutes. Mrs. Rutledge had prepared him for the shock of seeing Caroline so thin and pale that her skin was like white silk stretched over a framework.

Caroline was pathetically pleased to see him. "Mother's told me of your good fortune," she said, lifting a hand weakly for his eager clasp. "I'm awfully glad."

"We can still use the motorcycle together," he replied. "We can start a minute earlier and I'll drop you off at your place."

His false cheeriness, no obvious lies about her appearance, just the unquestioning assumption that she would be back at work presently. When he left he took her thought with him. It was the first time since the early stages of her illness that she had dealt with any interest upon the future. She began to wish to get well.

It was another week before she was allowed to read the newspapers. Alva made a rule of scanning them first to see that they contained nothing to upset her, but one day the nurse carried up one she had not read and Caroline found an account of a party Gwendolyn had given in her new home. Among the list of guests were very few persons she knew. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Seeman and that Florine Montross—she wondered what Howard thought of them.

She had never been able to understand his reason for marrying Gwendolyn. It had been too cruel, too cruel to her, to consider it now without feeling that she was stabbing pain in her heart. Was she, she asked herself, falling out of love with Howard? Oh, she wished she could—wished she could put his smiling face out of her memory—forget him altogether!

It almost seemed that she might accomplish this, for less and less often did she think of him during her long convalescence. But one poured like liquid gold out of a clear blue sky and she sat in her deck chair, relaxed and warmed by it, absorbing its living strength into her weakened body, her eyes contented with the joy of the sun.

Mrs. Rutledge was away. Mrs. Wade was back again for a few hours each day. She brought Howard's name to Caroline, but before the girl could decide what to do Howard appeared on the back porch.

"I was afraid you would refuse to see me," he apologized. "So I followed your maid through the house."

Mrs. Wade was waiting. Caroline said: "It's all right, Jenny. Mr. Dunsforth will stay."

He came over and lifted her hand, bent his lips to its blue-veined whiteness. "I heard only today," he said brokenly.

It was as though the touch of his lips had cracked a shell, the shell that time and pride had been building around her heart. She could feel her love going out to him like a pent-up stream. It was a coursing ecstasy, wiping out barriers, bearing down even the memory of sorrow.

Howard lifted his eyes to her face, saw the bright glow of rapture that transformed it, and had his answer.
"My darling!" he cried and folded her in his arms.

It seemed to Caroline that a curtain had been rung down between them and the world. Nothing mattered but this moment together. But talk could not be forever postponed. Howard began it.

"Let me tell you everything before you start thinking," he begged. "Whatever it comes to, Caro, dear, we know that we love each other."

Caroline thought: "Yes, that can't be denied now." But she said nothing.
"Gwen doesn't figure in this," he said with a sudden sharpness. "Believe that, Caro. She only wanted to marry someone socially above her."

"But how could you, Howard?" It was a very human question and only slightly reproachful.
"Just the same mistake a lot of us make," he replied. "I was lost without you. When I came to realize that, I couldn't come back and ask your forgiveness, couldn't believe you would grant it. Then I suddenly found myself meeting Gwen several times a week. I didn't know why, but I've learned since that our dads had some sort of a business deal on and Mother was catering to the Hoffmanns a bit for Dad's sake."

"Well, of course, with Gwen at the house so much I found out that she was as much adrift as I. You know what I mean, Caro. The people she wanted to know hadn't taken her up. She was unhappy about it. I was so despondent I didn't care what I did. One night—I was a little tight—I got the idea that I might hand out a little of the happiness I couldn't find for myself to somebody else. I thought I'd give her the chance she wanted. It didn't seem to me that I could be unhappy than I was. So I told Gwen what I had in mind—told her that I hadn't a spark of love for her—that I still felt about you as I always had, in short, that I adored you."

He paused, radiating an aura of pride in a love as true as this.
"You told her—that!" Caroline gasped.

"She agreed that it didn't matter, that she'd see I got excitement and interest in exchange for putting her in the social register."

"And have you got it?" Caroline asked, a trifle maliciously.
"Oh my dear, I got excitement! It's been ghastly living with her. Please don't think I want to abuse her unjustly, but her idea of excitement and interest is incredible. Some of the people she's dragged into the house!"

"You mean that even as your... your wife, she failed in her ambition?"

Miserably, she'd made the mistake of associating with a bad crowd—the Seemans and their friends—she couldn't wash that off. Caroline recalled the Seeman's party that she had attended, in particular the man who had kissed her. She couldn't feel sorry for Gwendolyn. It hadn't been fair, her marrying Howard, accepting him when he was tight and knowing—she must have known, Caro, she told herself fiercely—that Howard would eventually seek the girl he loved, with nothing but a silly quarrel standing between them. She might have told him to wait—given him a chance—but no, for the sake of nothing more than selfish social aspirations she had gobbled him up in a hurry. And then she hadn't been able to achieve the thing for which so much happiness had been sacrificed.

"It's so... so wickedly wasteful," she said despairingly, "unless... a new thought had come to her... unless she loves you, Howard."

"She doesn't. She knows as well as I do that it's all a horrible mistake. But... she stopped. Caroline was looking at something behind him. Her expression caused him to turn. Mrs. Rutledge was standing in the doorway, held motionless with surprise at seeing him there.

He greeted her cordially, instantly assuming an artificial manner of ease. Her eyes went past him to Caroline as she spoke to him. The girl's flushed face alarmed her. "I'm afraid you've been over-excited, Caroline," she said rebukingly.

"It was just what I needed," Caroline smiled.

Alva faced Howard with a quiet firmness that astonished him. "I'm afraid I must send you away," she said politely. "It is time for Caroline to go upstairs."

Caroline objected, but Howard, who had no wish to displease her mother, agreed that he ought to go and asked if he might return the next afternoon. Caroline granted the permission, although she saw her mother's face cloud over with disapproval.

Alva went with him to the front door. She did not immediately return. When she did Caroline was in a fever of anxiety. "What did you say to him, Mother?" she demanded pleadingly.

Caroline's eyes searched her face for signs of evasion. You did not tell him to stay away, did you?" she asked pleadingly.

Alva came and put an arm around her shoulders. "My dear," she said gently. "I shall not treat you as a child. But do you realize what this means—seeing Howard again?"

"I think so—yes, I do!" Caroline replied, and her answer revealed mounting confidence. "It means that Howard and Gwendolyn have reached an understanding. Their marriage is a failure, as they might have known it would be. And I'm partly to blame. I was beastly to Howard that day I broke our engagement. It's no wonder he didn't come back to me. How could he expect me to be reasonable?"

"Oh, my dear, aren't you just building up a defense for something you know isn't sound?"

"You mean—Howard's love for me?"

"Yes. I can't see how he could marry Gwendolyn Hoffmann if he still cared for you—unless he is utterly a cad."

"Please don't say that," Caroline protested. "I've grown to love you so, Mother, but I love Howard too. You just don't understand, that's all. He did it in a fit of despondency, with some crazy idea of sacrificing himself to make someone else happy."

"Is that what he told you?" Alva's voice was chill with contempt.

Caroline checked the hot protest that rose to her lips. "I have helped you to think as you do about Howard," she said, instead, "and you can't believe in him now. But you aren't justified in judging him so harshly. It isn't fair to me, either. It destroys so much—so much that's helped me to find peace these last few weeks. The change in you—I've felt as I used to about you, and that we were very close to each other. For a while... before I got sick... I... I don't like to say it, Mother, but it seemed that you... she came to a stop, unable to find words that would not be too cruel to express what was in her mind.

"I know," Alva said quietly, "I disappointed you—bitterly. And I think I know how you feel. You say you love Howard—in spite of his faults. You expect me to understand that if you forgive him, those loyal to you will do the same. But you forget, dear, that your love blinds you. I did not judge him without cause. The very loyalty and understanding you expect from me compels me to tell you what I know even at the risk of destroying your... your faith in me."

Diet Is Factor In Treating Skin Ills

Proper Foods Play an Important Part in Cure of "Psoriasis"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

PSORIASIS is one of the common and stubborn disorders of the skin. For many years this disorder proved baffling to the doctors. But though the actual cause has not as yet been discovered, great progress has been made in its treatment.

Psoriasis is a chronic inflammatory disease of the skin characterized by dry and scaly spots. These sores are different from most skin disturbances in that they rarely have a moist surface. Eczema, for instance, has a moist or "weeping" and itching surface, while psoriasis is dry and does not itch.

Symptoms of Psoriasis
The disease may involve almost any part of the skin, but rarely affects the face. The most common sites are the elbows and knees. In the mild form, the skin becomes thickened and scaly. In the more severe form, circular patches appear in large areas all over the body. These patches have a red base and are covered with dry, silvery, adherent scales. Hereditary, nervous disorders and various constitutional disturbances are believed to be factors in producing the disease.

Though no definite remedy for psoriasis is known, relief is obtained after getting rid of all systemic disturbances and giving special attention to diet. In addition, outdoor life, abundant exercise, special exercises and certain foods are beneficial in the treatment of this disorder.

"Diet" in Psoriasis
Of special importance in the study of diet in psoriasis is the discovery that diet plays an important part in its treatment. It is found that a great many of the foods which are omitted in the treatment of this disorder are omitted for the following reasons:
Many of the so-called "dietary" foods which are omitted, such as meat, fish, eggs, liver and oil, are rich in fats, which are the general health. It is observed that in some cases, the elimination of these foods is of value in some cases, and in all cases, the elimination of these foods is helpful. In many instances, a soothing ointment containing tar is helpful. It could only be applied, however, if advised by the doctor who is familiar with your case.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. C. D. S. Q.—I have recently been advised by my doctor that I have shingles. What would you advise?

A.—For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A. B. Q.—Every morning I awaken with a severe headache which usually lasts for about an hour or so. This headache persists whether I eat before retiring or not. What would be apt to cause the trouble?

A.—This condition may be due to a number of causes. Make sure that the sleeping room is properly ventilated; however, avoid a direct draft or current of air. Keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

PATTERN 9210

If you are one of the thousands of women with a "figure complex" you'll like the triangular lines of this well-tailored frock. For the dress is cut with an eye to flatter the more mature figure. The skirt panels sweep up to chic points above the waistline and give the long slim look which all of us are trying to achieve today. The bodice closes in a buttoned point and adds a crushed scarf collar for flattery around the neck. Make the frock without the collar, and semi-belted, if you prefer—and let the graceful bell sleeves hang open at the wrist, or stitch them into smart triangular flares as is shown in the smaller sketch.

Pattern 9210 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric and 1/2 yard contrasting.

DAVEY PLANS REST BEFORE TAKING POST

Will Confer in Washington
With Relief Officials, Then
Travel to South.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—Conferences between Gov.-elect Martin L. Davey and President Roosevelt, Public Works Administrator Ickes and Federal Relief Administration Hopkins will be held in Washington early next week, Davey announced today.

Proposed changes in personnel of the Ohio relief administration were expected to be discussed with Hopkins. While the governor-elect refused to indicate whom he might select as state relief director, there was a broad inference that the incumbent, Adj. Gen. Frank D. Henderson would not be re-appointed.

QUESTIONS UNANSWERED

The relief program Davey will discuss with the President and his advisers he was unwilling to reveal at this time, nor would he discuss any policies of his administration. He referred interrogators to the Democratic state platform and to his campaign speeches.

These policies were, however, threshed out by Davey and his cabinet, meeting for the first time in a hotel room here. All cabinet members were present except Alfred A. Benesch, Cleveland, director of commerce, who could not be present because of a case in federal court.

Davey will see Benesch in Cleveland in the next day or two, then leave for Washington. From there he will go to Florida to remain until after Christmas. In the Davey party will be his wife, his daughter, Evangeline; Frances Poulson, Democratic state committee chairman, and Mrs. Poulson.

The governor-elect promised to maintain a "hands off" policy with respect to organizing the next general assembly, convening a few days before he is sworn in on Jan. 14.

He stated emphatically he would not attempt to dictate the selection of the house and senate officers or the important committee assignments. Nor will he further attempt to get the emergency tax program through the present "lame duck" session.

"After my recent conference with Governor White," he said, "the word was sent out to my friends in the legislature that I desired them to support the governor's program. I shall go no farther."

LAUDS HIS CABINET

After introducing the members to newspapermen, Davey said of his cabinet:

"I think we have as good a cabinet as Ohio ever had. Of course, how we perform will determine how good we are."

All remaining appointments, he said, will be made upon recommendation of his patronage committee which Poulson will head. He promised to give the various counties representation according to their percentage of the state's total population.

Plans for the inauguration, he added, are in the hands of the Democratic state committee and Columbus civic leaders. If the weather is inclement on inauguration day, Davey will take the oath either in the Columbus auditorium or the Coliseum at the fairgrounds.

QUINTET SET FOR OPENER

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

CLARK AT QUARTER

Three Detroit gridders including Dutch Clark at quarterback, Buster Mitchell at end and Ox Emerson at guard have been selected by the United Press for the all-American professional team. A strange thing has taken place in the selection with Jack Manders, Chicago Bear star, receiving an "Honor" berth—Manders is figured not quite good enough for the first team but he is named as the extra player so he could go in the game at any time to boot a field goal about any spot on the field.

BEARS SET FIVE

The Bears gained five places on the first team with Hewitt at end, Lyman at tackle, Kopcha at guard and Peathers and Nagurski in the backfield. The remaining first team spot went to Hein of New York at center, Edwards of Boston at tackle and Battles of Boston at halfback.

SENIOR DEAN SIGNS

Dizzy Dean of the famous Dean brothers will receive a nice stipend of between $20,000 and $26,000 for his mound work during the coming baseball season, it was announced in St. Louis Wednesday. The figure was not definitely disclosed—We wonder who, Brother Paul will get.

CAGE ACTIVITIES

Columbus independent court activities are picking up—Buck Lumme, running the Morrey jeweler team—Bliss college with a bunch of independent cagers in its lineup lost to Ohio U. 48-27 at Athens. The center position is still worrying Tubby Olsen of the Ohio Staters; he will use either George or Thomas—Billy Thom pinned the Irishman Leo Donohue in last night's wrestling card.

Girl Scout News

Logan Elm Girl Scout troop No. 1 met for a short session Tuesday afternoon at the Pickaway-two school building. After opening of the meeting with a flag drill final plans were made for a market to be held Saturday, Dec. 8 at Smith's meat market.

Plans were discussed for the annual Christmas party that is sponsored by this group. The meeting closed with taps and the radio hand clasp. The next session will be Dec. 11. Scribe, Virginia Dreisbach.

Herberholz Not Certain Just Who Will Start With Warm Contests Seen.

Coach Pete Herberholz of the high school cage team was uncertain today what his starting lineup would be against Williamsport Friday evening at the C. A. C. because he has a number of boys putting up real contests for several positions.

In a scrimmage at the school Wednesday afternoon Herberholz used a number of different combinations and found that one worked as well as another.

He had Styers, John Jenkins, Spackman, Henry, Grant, Coleman, Krawin and several others alternating at various positions. Several others may break into the game against Williamsport a lot depending upon how stiff a team the Deer Creek-two crew under a new coach, Emil Haney, will prove.

Williamsport is reported to have several boys as big as anything Circleville can put on the floor. The county team might surprise and make things far more interesting than expected. Last year the Tigers defeated the visitors by only a small margin after gaining a big first period lead.

The reserves of the two schools will tangle in the preliminary which starts at 7:30 o'clock. Johnny Heskell will handle the whistle for both games. A good crowd is expected.

OHIO SWIMMERS TO TRAVEL EAST

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—Christmas vacation will not find members of the Ohio State university swimming team resting at home, but on a trip through the East where they will meet three of the outstanding aquatic squads of that section, Coach Mike Peppe, of the Buckeye squad, has arranged these meets with the seaboard tanksters.

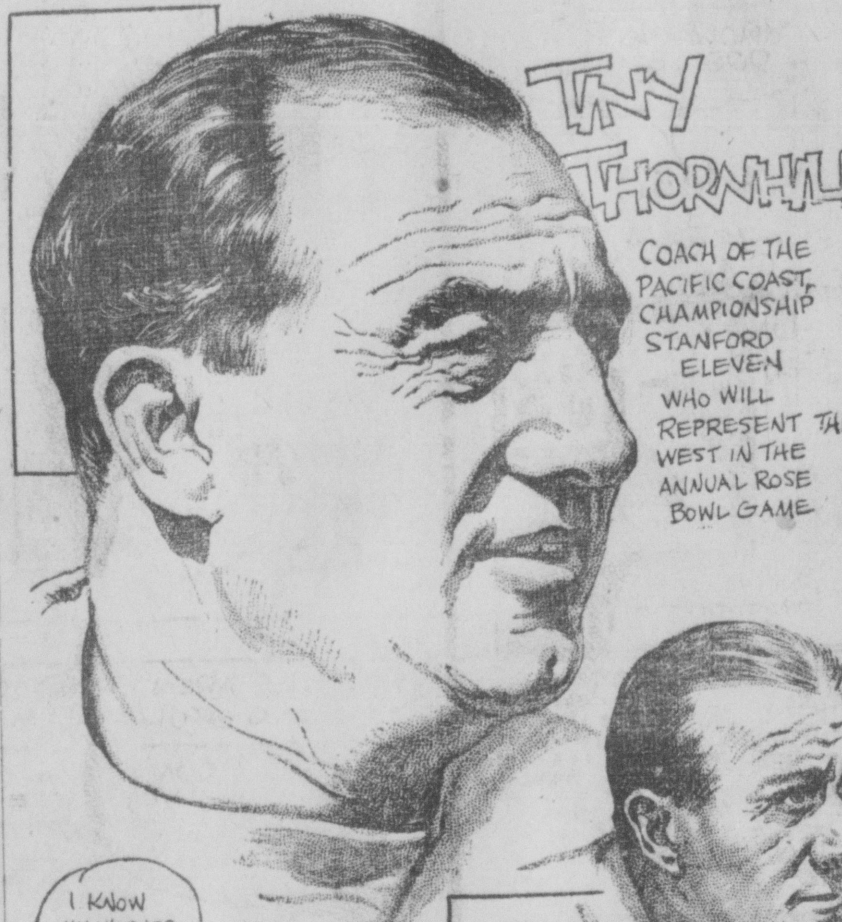

The first of these contests is scheduled with the Penn Athletic Club, Philadelphia, for Dec. 27. The following day the Newark Athletic Club will be met in the New Jersey city. Jumping across the river, on Dec. 29, the Ohio State aggregation will churn the waters of the New York Athletic Club pool in the toughest meet of the series. These athletic club teams have on their rosters the outstanding swimmers in the East and the Buckeyes are anticipating the par in competition in each meet.

Leading the Ohio State swimmers is Captain George Colville, a star breast stroke swimmer of last season. Colville, who hails from Circleville, is ranked as one of the best breast stroke performers in the country. Baker Bryant, of Columbus, heads the free style performers in the dash events.

EAST AND WEST LINEUPS FORMED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Officials of the annual east-west shrine charity football game which will be played on New Year's day here, announced today that 14 outstanding college grid stars had accepted invitations to play in the classic.

The following men will definitely appear: West—James ("Red") Stacy, all-Bix-Six guard of the University of Oklahoma; Capt. Ray Fugua, end, and Clyde Carter, tackle, of Southern Methodist; Paul Silkosky, fullback, Capt. ("Woody") Ullin, tackle and Church Mucha, all-America guard of Washington; George Theodoratus, tackle, and Frank Stojack, guard, Washington state.

East—Pug Lund, fullback, Frank Larson, end, and Phil Bengston, guard, all of Minnesota's championship eleven; Charley Harwig, all-America guard; Izzy Weinstock, fullback, and Miller Munjas, quarterback, all of the University of Pittsburgh.

BURDICK TIRED OF DEFEATS OF KNOX

GALESBURG, Ill., Dec. 6.—If Knox college is to set a new world's record in football it will have to do it without Coach Lloyd Burdick.

The former University of Illinois star quit his job to join the playing squad of the Detroit Lions, member of the National Pro football league.

His resignation came after a 1934 gridiron season which saw old Siwash tie the world's record with 27 consecutive defeats. Knox failed to score in the last eight games.

HOME LOANS TOTAL NEARLY 21 MILLION

Loans totaling $20,973,872 were made to 6,707 distressed small home owners in Ohio during the month ending November 30th, according to the report of Henry G. Brunner, State Manager of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation given out today.

Despite the Thanksgiving holiday, 1,434 were disbursed during the week ending November 29th, according to the report. The total value of these loans was $4,607,969.

Of the above amount, $4,095,900 was covered by the issuance of the Corporation bonds exchanged with former mortgagees, and the balance of $512,069 was paid in cash to county treasurers for back taxes, for accrued interest on the bonds, necessary repairs, attorney's fees, and appraiser's fees.

HOW TO DANCE

"The Continental"

In 8 Easy Lessons

The Fifth Movement

OUR delightful little romance, as told in the new ballroom dance, "THE CONTINENTAL," has now advanced to the proper time for the girl to express a little joy of her own volition.

She does so with a happy Skip Strut Step, as demonstrated in the above photograph of the FIFTH MOVEMENT.

The gentleman, as you can see, hasn't much to do in this movement, save holding the girl's hand above his head for a pivot as she trips gaily around him. The whole movement is expertly done by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "The Gay Divorcee."

It is best described as a sort of skippy-hop, to tabasco tempo, and is done to Fox Trot or 4-4 time, as are all other movements of the dance.

One counts "One," the right foot is advanced and pointed, striking the floor on "One!"

A lot of things have to be accomplished before "Two!"

The left foot is lifted from the floor. The dancer then hops backward with the right foot as the left is advanced and pointed, both the right and left foot hitting the floor on "Two!"

This same movement is repeated on "Three" and "Four," and continued for four bars of the music or sixteen counts. The girl must have completed her circle in those sixteen counts, and therefore must be very careful to make proper progress with each skip-strut.

code price-fixing practices which the Federal Trade Commission had been opposing for years.

That Richberg has been intervening with the Federal Trade Commission to stop its complaints against monopolistic practices under NRA.

That Richberg took the side of the power companies as against municipally-owned companies during the electric power code hearing.

That Richberg is primarily responsible for approving the much-criticized aluminum code.

This poorly concealed coolness of his old labor friends rankles Richberg; and to rekindle the old warmth he has asked for a private meeting with executives of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L.

But he will probably fail.

Assistant President

As "Assistant President," Richberg's job is that of chief coordinator of New Deal activities and chief sales of New Deal sanity to doubting business men.

The former is desperately needed, and Richberg should be able to do it well.

The latter he also does convincingly, but no one can do it with complete success. A few months ago when the NRA was bogged down with complete inactivity, Richberg was busy assuring business men that all was right with the Blue Eagle. Today he is busy at the rate of several speeches per week, assuring chambers of commerce that Roosevelt will co-operate with business.

It is a job that cannot last.

It cannot last partly because Richberg has changed too many times, partly because no man can continue to be "Assistant President." Roosevelt may have one "inside" adviser for a brief time, but he shuffles and reshuffles constantly.

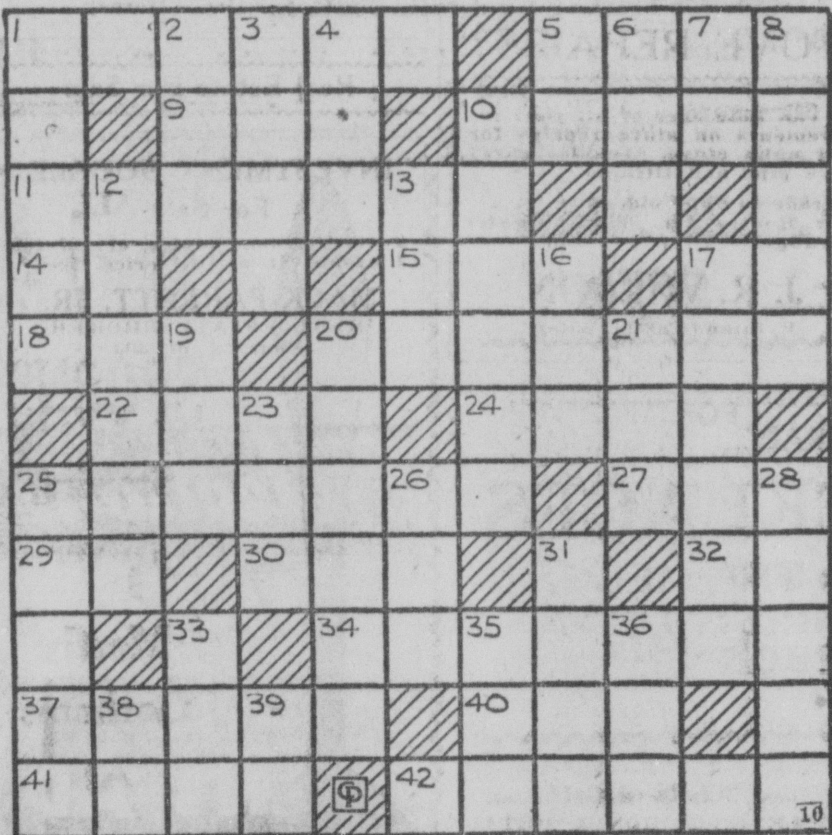

The title "Assistant President," rankles Richberg. He would like to shelve it. But he has one great goal ahead. He has told friends that his dreams are fixed on the August tribunal of the Supreme Court.

And when, sooner or later, he steps out as "Assistant President," that probably is where he will go.

The word "streamline" has been in use for a number of years in connection with hydrodynamics. It was defined by Horace Lamb in 1906 as "a line drawn from point to point so that its direction is everywhere that of the motion of the fluid."

SCIENTISTS SOLVE DEATH MYSTERY ON ISLAND

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Death today was revealed as stalking the modern Eden of the Pacific on Charles Island of the mysterious and little known Galapagos group.

Radio messages from Capt. G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles scientist-explorer, received at his offices here, from the cruiser Velero III, on which Hancock is taking a party of Smithsonian Institution scientists to the island, solved the mystery of the death of two men on lonely Marchena Island of the Galapagos.

The radio also announced the death of Dr. Frederick Ritter, German scientist, who went into a self-imposed exile on the islands with his common law wife, Frau Dore Strauch Koerwein.

At the same time it was revealed Baroness Bosquet Von

Wagner, self-termed empress of the islands and her friend, Robert Phillipson, have been missing from the islands for more than five months and are believed to have perished.

IDENTIFIES BODIES

Capt. Hancock, forsaking his beloved science long enough to turn detective, definitely identified the bodies found on Marchena Island some weeks ago as those of Alfred Rudolph Lorenz, once close friend of the Baroness, who accompanied her to the islands, and Trygve Nuggerud, a Norwegian sailor.

With Lorenz and Nuggerud perished a native, in the belief of Capt. Hancock, although the body was never found.

Residents of the islands, Arthur Wittmer and his wife and two children, and Frau Koerwein, told the dramatic tale of the tragedy of the Galapagos to the scientists.

These five, the only survivors of the little colony on Charles Island, told Capt. Hancock how the Baroness had driven Lorenz from the island in an open boat without food or water on July 5.

Lorenz later picked up Nuggerud and the native boy and set out for Chatham Island in the hope of reaching the mainland from there.

Twenty-one days later an abandoned boat of the trio was sighted from Charles Island, the radio message declared.

Shortly after driving out Lorenz, the Baroness and Phillipson departed from the islands. No trace of them has been found since that time.

Residents of the islands told Capt. Hancock, who had visited Marchena and identified the mummified bodies of Lorenz and Nuggerud before coming here, that the trio apparently had been dashed on Marchena's rocky shores by a storm, one of their boats being wrecked and the other swept away.

Dr. Ritter, who died of sunstroke on November 21, had been on the island since 1928, when he came here with Frau Koerwein to establish a modern Eden amidst the black volcanic rock.

Dr. Ritter left his opera-singer wife in Berlin when he came here with Frau Koerwein, wife of a Berlin gymnasium operator.

ECONOMIC PLANS READY, IS REPORT

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL TRAIN, Dec. 6.—President Roosevelt has completed the basic structure of his economic program for the nation in 1935.

Under this program, the New Deal next year will swing around a central axis of a giant combination housing and work relief plan.

There will be additions, and revisions of the setup as now planned. Much polishing up remains to be done. The details are in what the president calls the study stage.

Back of the haziness, however, there looms already the broad outline of a cohesive whole. How his plans will be put into effect, Mr. Roosevelt has not yet decided. Just what will be done, on the other hand, he has pretty clearly in his mind.

Hi Ho Says:

"We hate inertia," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown. "Rather than be going nowhere men will often rush to destruction."

At the End of 40 Years in the Jewelry Business we are compelled to Close Out everything. Not only do we face the expiration of our lease in the early Spring, but we had to acknowledge that our physical powers are waning seriously. You can imagine that this decision was by all odds the most weighty of our career. "What are we going to do?" is the first question our friends ask when we confided our problem or asked for advice. We do not know, neither will we worry about that for the present. NOW, we must get rid of everything and get away,—and if you should question our sincerity just look at the prices we are quoting. No profits here. Another thing. We are putting this sale on ourself—saving you the high cost of promotion. Naturally, these ads will be minus High Sounding phrases, superlative adjectives and eye-catching scare heads. Space so used by others will be utilized by us to enumerate the long list of unheard of bargains from our tremendous stock. OUR STOCK IS TREMENDOUS. Therefore, it is plain to us, as well as to you, if we expect to dispose of this immense quantity of merchandise it would be necessary to sacrifice until it hurts. And if you wish evidence to verify our honesty and sincerity of this conclusion, just look at the prices on this page and look at the prices in our windows.

Capital Says "Assistant President" Richberg to Be Out Within Year

WASHINGTON—Among the blase spectators who watch the clash of New Deal gladiators, even money is now being offered that Donald Richberg will be out of the arena within a year.

This does not necessarily mean discredit to Richberg. But it does illustrate two things: First no man who wins the title of "Assistant President" lasts long; second, the spotlight of public attention is now focussed upon Richberg as on no other New Dealer except the President.

No man now has more power—outside the White House—than Richberg; and no man has achieved that power by a more fascinating, meteoric career.

It so happens that Richberg began that career with the only other man who approaches him in New Deal power. Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, PWA administrator, petroleum dictator, and executive of a score of other agencies, once was a law partner of Richberg.

They had built up a thriving practice when suddenly Richberg threw down his books, locked his desk, and went out to start a crusade against Sam Insull, Chicago politician and the big business leader who controlled them.

And he was still a crusading lawyer—as chief attorney for the Railroad Brotherhoods—when he came to Washington.

No wonder that cold shivers ran down the spinal columns of business! No wonder that several Tory groups adopted as their battle-cry: "Out Richberg!"

Right About Richberg

Richberg has changed a lot since then and now enjoys reverse praise and vituperation. Business calls him a "wise guy," while his old labor friends scarcely speak to him.

The change has made Richberg the Number Two man in the Administration; eventually it will cause his downfall.

It is hard to diagnose the reasons for this change. But it is not hard to diagnose the reasons why he became "Assistant President."

Richberg is one of the ablest men around Roosevelt. He is as quick as lightning. He has a profound background. He has a powerful personality—charm, understanding, a sense of humor. No matter how much you may disagree with Richberg, you can't help liking him.

But perhaps more important than all these, Richberg sees eye-to-eye with the President. Like Roosevelt, Richberg essentially is a middle-of-the-road man. As he recently described himself:

"My liberalism is less radical than it is reputed to be, and more liberal than some say it is."

That is penetrating self-analysis. Richberg is neither anti-labor, nor pro-industry. Actually he is among the President's "Left" advisers. But he is so much more conservative than he used to be, that showers of Labor abuse have been heaped upon his head.

Vituperation

Labor charges many things: That Richberg's pussyfooting on Section 7a of the NRA is responsible for the present chaos and misunderstanding on the labor front.

That Richberg OK'd in the steel

MRS. REICHE SERIOUS AFTER FALL

HEAD INJURED IN FALL OVER PORCH RAILING

Well Known Woman Unconscious in Berger Hospital; Loses Balance

WAS DUSTING RUG Lands on Head on Ground 14 Feet Below

Mrs. Margaret D. Reiche, wife of M. F. Reiche, Jr., W. Main-st. implement dealer, is in a precarious condition in Berger hospital after falling head-first from the back porch of her second story residence at 9 a. m. Thursday.

Mrs. Reiche late this afternoon had not regained consciousness.

It was feared she may be suffering from a fractured skull and broken neck although these injuries have not been definitely established.

FOUND BY GROCE

She was found unconscious on the ground at the rear of the implement store by Harry H. Groce, E. Union-st., employee of Mr. Reiche who had gone out to pull a cake of ice up to the second floor. This was a daily custom.

Mr. Groce tried to lift her to carry her into the store but was unable to do so. He called Mr. Reiche and George Grubb and all three carried her in. Dr. Howard Jones was summoned and the injured woman was taken to the hospital in the Albaugh Co. ambulance.

LOST BALANCE

She was shaking a rug while standing on the back porch when she apparently lost her balance and fell over the porch rail. The drop measures about 14 feet. Mrs. Reiche, who is about 70, struck the stony ground on the right side of her head.

Her condition is considered extremely grave with recovery doubtful.

END OF GANG IS THOUGHT NEAR

Nelson's Widow Reported To Have Given Information Concerning Others.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Armed with information wrung from Mrs. Helen Gillis, widow of the slain George "Baby Face" Nelson, the department of justice today was ready to deal a crushing blow at the remnants of the John Dillinger gang of desperadoes.

Repeated questioning by federal agents in the seven days since her surrender has yielded vital clues concerning the possible whereabouts and habits of the Dillinger gang survivors, it was reported.

A voluntary assistant in the interrogation, according to reliable reports, was Mrs. Juliette Fitzsimmons, sister of Public Enemy No. 1 Nelson. Mrs. Fitzsimmons arranged the surrender of the fragile 21-year-old widow one week ago after the furious gun battle at Barrington, Ill., in which Nelson killed Federal Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Agent Herman Hollis before he was fatally wounded.

With the information yielded by Mrs. Gillis federal operatives apparently were confident that a clean-up of the last handful of Dillinger arch-criminals was imminent today. Chief among the gangsters still at large are John Hamilton, the nation's new Public Enemy No. 1, and Alvin Karpis, wanted for the ransom kidnapping of Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker.

NEW CANNING FIRM PLANNED IN STATE

DEFIANCE, Dec. 6.—A new canning plant for Ohio was assured today after the Franks Canning company of Montpelier announced it would build a local plant as soon as business men here provide clear title to land they will donate for the factory.

At peak production, according to the plans worked out, the canning operations will employ 500 persons. Tomatoes and kidney beans will be the farm products canned.

HERALD TO PRINT LETTERS TO SANTA

The Herald again intends to print letters written by children of the city and county to that old favorite Santa Claus. Every year many children write their notes to Old Saint Nick telling him what they want for Christmas.

All you have to do is write them legibly on a piece of paper and carry or mail them to The Herald office. None will be taken over the telephone.

CITY TREASURY IN 'SHAKY' FIX

General Fund Cut Considerably With Source of Next Finances In Doubt.

A drab picture of the city's financial situation was given to council Wednesday evening by Ben H. Gordon chairman of the finance committee.

The general fund today shows a balance of $6,296.82 but council in its meeting Wednesday voted to appropriate $820 for miscellaneous bills and to finance several departments to the first of the year.

In addition to this slice from the general fund there remain $644 in outstanding bills for poor relief.

It is possible the city will receive some money from the state on intangible tax distribution in January, there may be some more money later from beer tax distribution, but the next settlement of county taxes will not be until April or May so the utmost economy is necessary if the city is to stay out of the 'red' even a short while.

Salaries and current operating expenses must be met out of the much depleted general fund.

FUNDS TRANSFERRED

The city with all advances taken out received $16,254.30 from the distribution earlier this week. That fund was cut to $6,296.82 by payment of current bills totaling $4,223.78, transfer of $1,000 to the hospital fund and $4,733.70 to the sinking fund.

Other balances on hand include $1,781.18 in the library fund, $936.48 in the auto street repair, $1,091.08 in the gasoline tax and $1,169.52 in the hospital fund.

Relief bills unpaid include $268.40 for rent, food and coal; $171.60 for physicians, $24 for ambulance and $180 for burials.

A bill for $113.65 was read from the Southern Ohio Electric Co. for work on traffic lights including transformers, etc. Miss Lillian Young, auditor, reported that she had enough money in a fund to pay this bill with the exception of $50; council appropriated the necessary $50 from the general fund.

Other funds appropriated to tide several departments over until the first of the year were; solicitor, $15; civil service commission, $5; sewers and ditches, $400 and lands, buildings, fuel and light, $300.

A sum of $25 was also appropriated to pay C. A. Leist who represented Safety Director L. T. Shaner in the suspension proceedings against Officer Carl Radcliff.

Another $25 was ordered paid to Frank Thomas for damages caused to his crops by water from the Smith ditch.

66 EXECUTED BY SOVIET GUN SQUAD

MOSCOW, Dec. 6.—More executions within the next few days appeared certain today as police, following the shooting of 65 men and one woman "counter revolutionaries," pressed their campaign to wipe out every enemy of the Bolshevik regime.

Five more, arrested with the 66 already put to death are held for "further investigation" before their punishment is meted out. A sixth, Leonid Nikolaitz, the assassin of Sergei Kirov of the Politburo, is being kept alive by physicians so that a full exposure may be wrung from him before he is executed.

Today's mass executions were carried out with the speed ordered by the government following the slaying of Kirov.

LANCASTER CHURCH PLANS NEW EDIFICE

LANCASTER, Dec. 6.—Plans for erection of a new edifice to house the Calvary Orthodox congregation of this city are nearing completion and a building committee has been authorized to engage an architect to draw plans.

CROSSER ENTERS RACE FOR SPEAKER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The long list of candidates for the speakership of the House got another member today.

Rep. Robert Crosser, of Cleveland, announced his candidacy in response to the urging of his friends.

His statement said "the important consideration is that those supporting me feel that by my election the principle of fundamental Democracy would be effectively promoted."

SNOW ON WAY

By International News Service.

With sub-freezing temperatures and the immediate prospect of light snow, Ohio today was held in what threatened to be the first protracted "cold wave" of the winter today.

"Continued cold for several days" was the forecast of W. H. Alexander, government forecaster at Columbus.

Alexander said, however, that the heavy snow storm now reported in Chicago would diminish in intensity as it reached Ohio. He forecast light snow for this afternoon, tonight and possibly tomorrow but said it would not be heavy enough to cover the ground except along Lake Erie.

Jury Denies Her Pleas

When Grace Mitchell, Pittsburgh radio singer, first begged a jury to spare the life of 21-year-old Russell Swiger for a murder committed during a full trial and now Swiger has been condemned to die in the electric chair. Miss Mitchell denied she loved Swiger but stated the youth had "showered her with attention."

TOENSMEIER AGAIN HEADS MINISTERS

Rev. Emil Toensmeier of the First Presbyterian church was re-elected president of the Pickaway-co Ministerial association at its meeting Thursday morning at his church.

Rev. Herman A. Sayre of the Methodist church was named vice president and Rev. W. A. Moore of the Williamsport Methodist church secretary and treasurer.

Dr. Donald Tippet of the Bexley M. E. church was the speaker using as his subject "The Christian Philosophy of Life."

Mrs. Fannie E. Kirk, executive secretary of the public health league, also attended explaining the Christmas seal sale.

WHAT... COUNCIL ... DID

Gave Service Director W. M. Justus and Engineer Harry Griner permission to prepare plans for construction of a 30-inch sewer as far as the Marfield land south of the city. It will be placed under the FERA if possible.

Heard a petition of S. Pickaway-st. residents urging a sanitary sewer between Union and Huston-sts. The petition was signed by I. B. Barnes, Charles H. Niles, G. W. Limebaugh, Blanche Weaver, H. H. Goeller, Charles O. Caskey, Mrs. J. C. Thomas, S. C. Grant, Anna Gates, James Kinser and Wesley Justus.

Prince of Peace Contest to be Held Here Sunday

The Pickaway-co Prince of Peace Declaration contest will be held Sunday evening, Dec. 9, in the local First Methodist Episcopal church at 7 o'clock. This contest is a part of the state-wide Prince of Peace Declaration contest held by the Ohio Council of Churches.

A silver medal will be given by the Ohio Council of Churches to the winner of this contest and the winner will compete in the congressional district contest to be held in January for a gold medal.

The congressional district contest winners will compete in the state contest, the winner of first place receiving $200 in cash and a four year free tuition college scholarship, the winner of second place $100 and a two year free

Fate of Tax Program Hinges on Outcome; Defeat Is Predicted

"NOT EMERGENCY"

Foes Say Tax Not in Effect Until 1936

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—On a vote the Ohio senate was expected to take late today on the controversial Ward income tax bill. The fate of the administration's entire emergency taxation program.

Should the bill muster the 17 votes necessary to passage, the end of the long struggle for revenue to replace temporarily that lost by enactment of the 10-mill real estate tax limitation amendment, would be in sight.

But in the event of adverse action by the senate on the income tax, house members were reported ready to offer a resolution for immediate adjournment of the "lame duck" session. This, perforce, would throw the whole financial crisis into the lap of the succeeding legislature and come dangerously near precipitating a breakdown in poor relief next January 1.

ONLY TWO BALLOT

Whatever optimism hitherto existed about the chances of the income tax surviving a vote on the floor, went up in smoke when only two of the 11 members of the senate tax committee voted on the bill and recommended its passage. They were Sen. D. J. Gunsett (D) Van Wert, chairman, and Sen. J. G. Lowery (R) New Concord.

Continuation of the roll call finally netted the requisite majority to prevent the measure from expiring in committee.

PLANES STILL HUNT AIRMEN

Commandant of Naval Area Files Report of Search For Uln and Mates.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A graphic report of the vain search made by American warships and naval planes in the desolate waters of the mid-Pacific for the missing Australian flyer, Lt. T. P. Uln, and his two companions, was received at the navy department today from Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commandant of the 14th naval district at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Admiral Yarnell said 25 naval vessels assisted by planes, had searched the waters northeastward of the Hawaiian Islands continuously throughout yesterday. The vessels and planes went out as far as 300 miles from the islands and searched over a radius of 200 miles from the islands of Kauai and Maui.

Neither the powerful telescopes in the hands of the keen-sighted seamen in the crow's nests of the warships nor the observers in the naval planes found any sight of the missing flyers, Admiral Yarnell said.

However, the navy, he added, is continuing the search.

Twenty fast naval planes were ordered out today on a north-northwest and southwest course of the island of Oahu and south and southwest of Hawaii.

The Naticquevans were under instructions to cover a radius of 250 miles in the hope that the lonely waters beneath them might give some sign of the missing airmen.

One hopeful sign in Admiral Yarnell's report was that the waters around Hawaii were comparatively calm and weather visibility conditions good.

HARLOW FILES SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Jean Harlow of the platinum hair today was seeking a divorce from her third husband, Hal Rosson, cameraman.

Miss Harlow charged Rosson with extreme mental cruelty.

She charged he was sullen, irritable and ungenerous.

Rosson refused to assist the star in entertaining for her friends and associates, the complaint pointed out.

The star contends that her husband was so unthoughtful as to often read in the couple's bedroom until late in the night, preventing Miss Harlow from obtaining the sleep she so badly needed while working at the studios.

SHANER FUNERAL

County Students at Ohio State Elect Pat Kirwin

As a part of the Ohio State university organization of county clubs, Pickaway-co students at the university have organized by naming Pat J. Kirwin, S. Court-st., a junior in the School of Journalism, president.

Other officers are Mary Ruth Tolbert, Pickaway-twp. vice-president; Floyd Graves, Pickaway-twp. secretary, and Donald May, E. Franklin-st., treasurer.

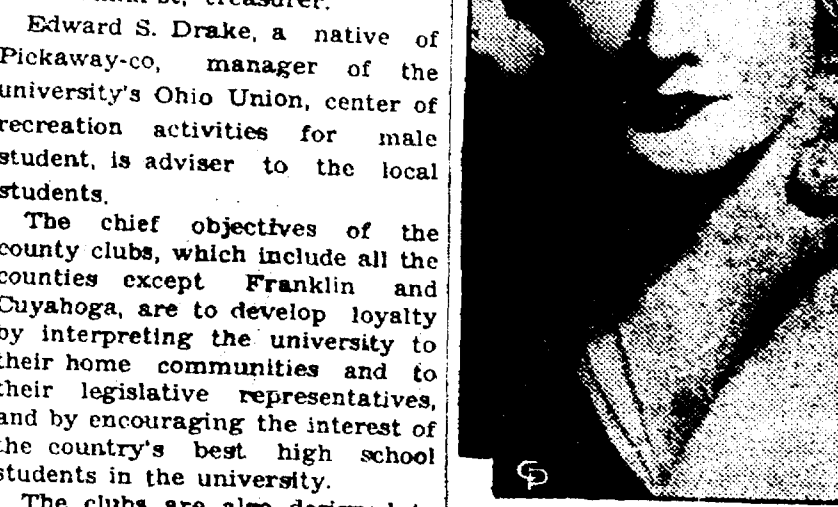

Edward S. Drake, a native of Pickaway-co, manager of the university's Ohio Union, center of recreation activities for male students, is adviser to the local students.

The chief objectives of the county clubs, which include all the counties except Franklin and Cuyahoga, are to develop loyalty by interpreting the university to their home communities and to their legislative representatives, and by encouraging the interest of the country's best high school students in the university.

The clubs are also designed to act as a means of widening acquaintances or cementing friendships, and to make available a moderate number of social events for out-of-town students.

The newly-formed club of local students expects to meet with the Pickaway-co Ohio State Alumni Association at its meeting after Christmas.

Sued for Divorce

Gladys George, according to Gladys George, above, Broadway star being sued for divorce by her husband, Ward Fowler, Massachusetts paper manufacturer, a fellow actor, Leonard Penn, named as co-respondent, was in her room only to "help bandage her sick cat." Penn also affirmed he had been taking care of the ailing Tabby.

UTILITY RATES AGAIN TALKED BY CITY DADS

Gordon and Reid Urge Council to Consider Action for Lower Costs

BOND ISSUE SEEN

Phipps Writes Concerning Pipe-Line Firm

The utility rate question was tossed back into the laps of councilmen Wednesday evening by Ben H. Gordon and W. M. Reid who urged that council begin negotiations with the Southern Ohio Electric Co. for a new current rate and that the city should start action to eventually construct municipally owned water and electric plants.

Gordon brought up the power rate issue by remarking that the rate with the electric company has only 18 months to go and that "council should not wait until the last minute to start negotiations."

MAY VOTE ON BONDS

Reid declined to have the municipal plant issue placed in committee but said that he believed a bond issue will be voted upon at the election next fall for one or possibly two city-owned and operated plants.

"If we can't get water and electric rates down where they ought to be in comparison with other cities," Councilman Gordon declared, "we should put the matter up to a vote of the people."

He recalled President Hoover's interest in the Tennessee Valley project when he urged "small towns to get in this the TVA."

A little earlier in the evening gas was the topic with Councilman Carl Leist reading a communication from W. H. Phipps, president of the Universal Pipe Line Co., which organization has been given a contract to bring 45-inch gas to this city.

Nothing had been heard from the pipe line company at the last council meeting Leist was instructed to write Mr. Phipps.

READY TO PROCEED

Phipps' reply was that his company had encountered difficulty with its preliminary financing but that all had been ironed out and that $60,000 had been placed in the coffers of the company for current expenses so that the universal was ready to proceed with its work of laying pipes from south of the Ohio river into Ohio where several cities have granted contracts.

Phipps' letter said that the permanent financing was never in question and that action would start immediately.

HANCOCK COUNTY JUDGE SUCCEUMBS

FINDLAY, Dec. 6.—Pneumonia today took the life of Hancock-co's only common pleas judge—Judge William F. Duncan.

Judge Duncan died early this morning. He had been suffering from arthritis for the last two years and had been inactive on the bench since the spring term.

Judge Duncan was elected to the common pleas bench here when first common pleas courts were created for each county. Previously he had served by appointment of Governor Nash as judge in the tenth judicial district.

Judge Duncan frequently served in other courts hearing important cases, among them the Cleveland court case of the East Ohio Gas Co., involving an important decision. The verdict in this case was carried by the company to the supreme court where Judge Duncan's decision was upheld.

UNITED STATES TELLS JAPAN NAVAL PARITY DANGEROUS

RACE CERTAIN, DAVIS CLAIMS

Roosevelt For All-Around Reduction of Naval Armaments, He Declares.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The United States today bluntly warned Japan that its insistence upon naval parity with the American and British fleets threatens world peace and may precipitate a naval race.

American Ambassador Norman H. Davis, in a luncheon address to a group of American correspondents here, declared the United States believes abandonment of the present ration system governing the limitation of navies "would lead to conditions of insecurity, of international suspicion, and of costly competition, with no real advantage to any nation."

ORDERED BY HULL

Davis' speech represented the first public pronouncement made by the United States concerning the naval situation since the opening of the naval discussions here. It was made upon instructions from Secretary of State Hull at Washington, and was designed as a last-minute appeal to Japan to reconsider its declared intention to denounce the Washington naval treaty.

Declaring the Japanese plan for full naval equality would not give "equality of security," Davis said: "The principle adopted (in the Washington treaty) was that of equality of security. Any basic alteration in this system must of necessity alter the security thus established."

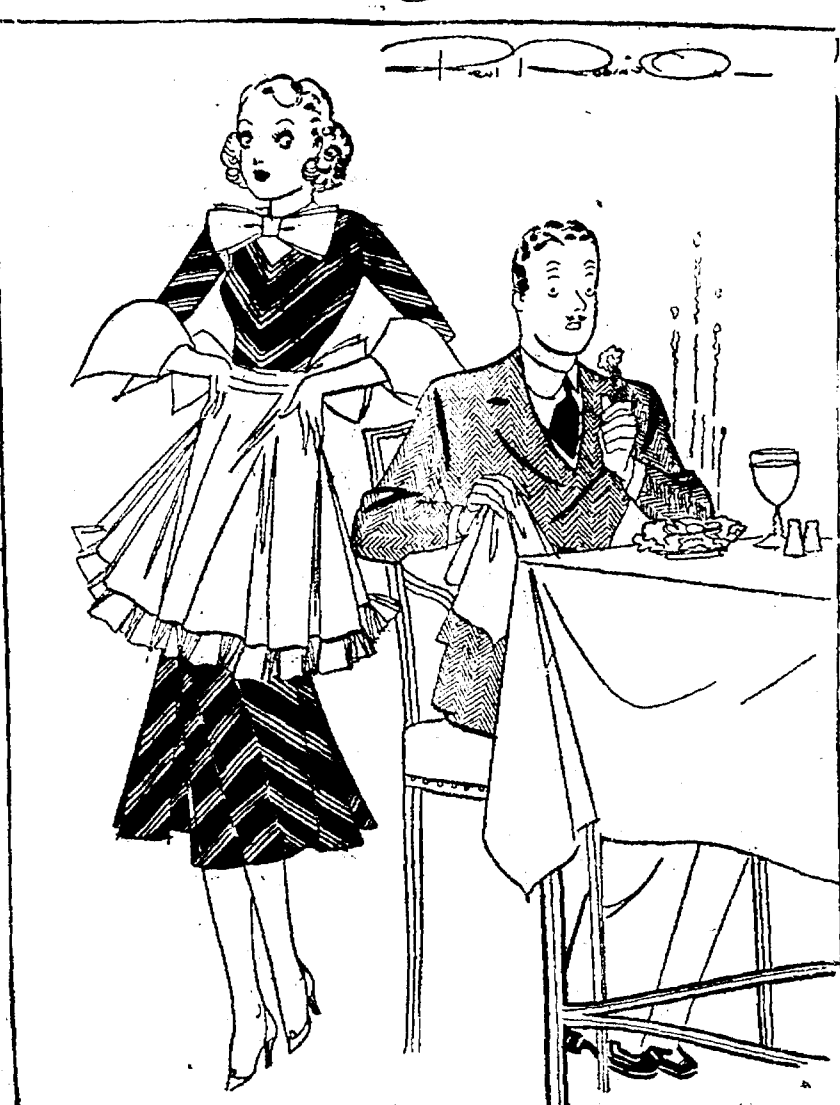

"The fundamental issue in the naval conversations now in progress is essentially as follows: Is the equilibrium that was established by the system worked out in the Washington treaties to be continued or is it to be upset?"

Taking Japan to task for its assertion that the superiority of the American and British navies constituted a menace to its security, Davis declared none of the powers would have agreed to the existing treaties if it felt that "its national security was thereby menaced or impaired."

Pointing out the ratio system has been the only successful system ever found to reduce and limit navies, Davis added the United States would "greatly regret and regard as most unfortunate the destruction of this system of naval limitation which has proved generally beneficial and which has not jeopardized the security of any nation."

Davis disclosed for the first time publicly that, as chief of the American delegation to the London naval conversations, he had proposed on instructions from President Roosevelt a "substantial all-around reduction in naval armaments."

Hungarians Ordered To Quit Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Dec. 6.—All Hungarians in Yugoslavia today received curt notice to leave the country within 48 hours, exceptions being made only in the case of those Hungarians employed by registered firms.

The order, coming upon the heels of a several weeks long drive against Hungarians as a result of the Marseilles assassinations, created a new tense international situation.

A possible serious incident threatened to develop at the Yugoslav-Hungarian border near Horoz, where 350 Hungarians awaited entry into their native land, but were refused permission to cross the border by order of the Hungarian government.

EX-CONVICT GIVEN LIFE PRISON TERM

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 6.—A life sentence—Michigan's most severe penalty—was imposed today upon Leroy Carson, 24-year-old former convict who confessed the wanton slaying of Leone Love, 12, yesterday.

Carson, former inmate of the Ionia state reformatory, will be on his way to Marquette prison less than 36 hours after the murder.

He confessed that he waylaid the little girl on her way to a rural school a few miles outside of Lansing, made advances to her, and shot her with a small hunting rifle when she became frightened and started to cry.

Her body was found stuffed in a culvert under a railroad track.

3 DIE IN CRASH

RICHMOND, Ind., Dec. 6.—Two physicians and a young woman newspaper columnist lay dead today, victims of a tragic attempt to make a night landing with their plane at the unlighted Richmond airport.

The airplane, piloted by Howard Maxwell of Indianapolis, plunged 300 feet to the ground west of the airport last night and burst into flames. The dead:

Dr. A. M. Mendenhall, of Indianapolis.

Miss Evelyn Mendenhall of Richmond, his daughter.

Dr. John Carmack, Indianapolis. Pilot Maxwell was thrown clear of the wreckage. Seriously injured, he was rushed to a hospital here.

The party was returning to Indianapolis from a medical meeting at Detroit when the landing was attempted.

conceded the income tax but scant chance of being adopted. Most damaging argument used against the bill was that no revenue could be derived from it before March, 1936, consequently it has no place in a strictly emergency tax program designed to survive only until the next general assembly can work out a permanent solution to Ohio's fiscal ills.

Only Senator Lowery championed the tax. Unless the legislature voluntarily accepts the income tax in principle, he said, the electorate at the next election will pass one and "it probably will be rather radical type with rates far in excess of those in this bill."

BACK TO COUNTIES

The bill comes up for a vote in the senate in much the same form as the house passed it. Chief difference is in allocation of the tax. The house gave it to the schools, while the senate tax group voted to send it all back to counties where it originates.

Estimates of what revenue the income tax would net vary so widely none can be singled out as authentic, but they run as high as $15,000,000. On the other hand, it is pretty generally agreed that the 3 per cent bracket retail tax will produce in excess of 60 million dollars, while the one per cent increase in utilities excise taxes, also adopted by both houses, is calculated to bring in $2,250,000 in new revenue.

Before voting 24 to 2 for adoption of the utilities bill, which the house passed last spring, the senate changed the allocation of the new revenue, taking it away from the schools and earmarking it back to the counties to use for mothers' pensions, blind relief, soldiers and sailors homes, care of tubercular patients and related purposes.

ESTATE WORTH $27,802
The estate of the late Jacob Martin of Amanda is valued at $27,802 according to the inventory filed in Fairfield-co courts.

Troutman's aunt Mrs. Richard Fellmuth and Mr. Fellmuth and Anna Marie in Butler, Pa.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep... Vigor... Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbar, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up three poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

These Cross Stitch Pictures Make Handsome Gifts

PATTERN 5262

A cross stitch picture has a delightfully decorative quality that makes it fit into any room. This charming pair—either one alone would make a handsome gift—can also be used as a decoration on a pillow or bag. They can be done in a variety of colors or in two shades of one color to get a silhouette effect, as for instance, black and gray, two shades of brown, green or blue. Each picture measures 6x8 inches. The popular 8 to the inch crosses are used and you can do these pictures in little time.

In pattern 5262 you will find a transfer pattern of two pictures 6x8 inches; a color chart and key; material requirements and directions for making the picture.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

Debts Paid After Wage Cut

Our Loan No. 18-7452 had his pay check reduced. This together with illness and numerous bills were pressing him. Fearing the loss of his job he called at The City Loan for financial assistance. After he and the manager had worked out a budget, he obtained a $200 loan. With cash he obtained good discounts for settlements, re-established his credit, and gave the merchants the money they needed so badly. And the payments on his loan leave him with more money each pay-day than he had before.

A LIKEABLE LITTLE LAND

FINLAND, it is reported, would like to have a loan from the United States and we should be certain that she gets it without undue formality or delay. There are important reasons why we should be generous to Finland, a rugged little land that has done well with limited opportunities.

Under the czars the Finns endured a cruel vassalage. Since then they have come along in admirable fashion, notwithstanding the handicaps of vicious winters, unproductive soil and limited natural resources.

In many respects, Finland's standards of living are equal to our own. Her school system, through which illiteracy has virtually been eliminated, is superb, and power has been made available to the people at limited cost. Fine public buildings and homes have been erected.

And, what is of supreme importance, is the scrupulous regard Finland has for her national honor. We lent money liberally during the war and after to many nations. But only Finland pays.

Announcement has just been made that she will pay, as usual, her December 1st semi-annual installment. Other nations, under a far greater obligation to us by reason of our help with money and aid on the firing line, will pay nothing.

There is good reason, then, that we should feel kindly toward Finland.

REPEAL—A YEAR LATER

PROHIBITION repeal is a year old and is due for national appraisal. Discounting natural prejudices, there is honest difference of opinion as to how well it has worked. There is no question, however, that repeal has contributed largely to public self-respect by restoring personal liberties the nation never should have taken away. On the material side, the Federal government has a new, or restored, source of revenue in excess of $300,000,000 annually, which is bond interest on $10,000,000,000.

However, it is generally believed taxes must be reduced so as to cheapen liquors. Otherwise bootlegging will continue to flourish.

On the social side the benefits of repeal are positive. Drinking no longer has to be furtive because illegal. It no longer need be feverish, begotten by uncertainty where the next drink is coming from once the oasis of the speakeasy is left behind. Drinking is not greater under repeal than before. This is the testimony of the best trained observers. Repeal has removed concept of drinking as a "high adventure" to youth, which, generally speaking, is no longer subjected to insidious efforts at debauchment by bootleggers.

The setup under repeal is admittedly far from perfect, but at least at the close of the first year it is better than what went before.

Typical adult reaction to the offer of new knowledge: "Aw, hooley!"

And yet, if there were no dead-beats, where would a young doctor get any practice?

How strange to expect little kids to learn when you can't even persuade adults to do it.

A critic talks of the repeal as being as charming as they need to be. And green peaches aren't so good, either.

We can imagine Mrs. Roosevelt's feelings when the White House neighbors begin running in to borrow the new gold-plated dishes.

It is fortunate that we aren't all smart. There must be committees to do thankless jobs, and somebody must be chairman.

The climb to success is easy. You find a rich and lonely old guy and then keep saying: "How wonderful you are, sir."

A soviet spokesman advises men to give up their seats in trolley cars to women. This is just another sign that Stalin's tough henchmen are beginning to soften up a bit.

HERE'S HOPINN SO ANYHOW!

(Settlement of troublesome Saar election between Germany and France rumored.—News dispatch.)

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXVI

"Are there better opportunities with Purcell?"

"Say, listen, Mrs. Rutledge, they're leaving Dunsforth behind so fast they'll be lapping around on his tail before he knows it! The only thing Dunsforth's got is the Rutledge mask."

"What is your ambition?"

"I'll be factory manager, sure enough. And I can get stock in the company—yes, I know that's a pitfall with some concerns but Purcell is a white man."

Mrs. Rutledge smiled. "Caroline has worked magic for both of us," she said. "I think I'll go up now. I'm quite calm, don't you think?"

"You look happy enough to keep her from suspecting the danger she was in," he assured her.

"I'll ask the doctor to let you see her as soon as it's safe," she promised him.

It was a week later that she was allowed to go in for just five minutes. Mrs. Rutledge had prepared her for the shock of seeing Caroline so thin and pale that her skin was like white silk stretched over a framework. But in spite of her caution he was barely able to hide his feelings and smile naturally.

Caroline was pathetically pleased to see him. "Mother's told me of your good fortune," she said, lifting a hand weakly for his eager clasp. "I'm awfully glad."

"We can still use the motorcycle together," he replied. "We can start a minute earlier and I'll drop you off at your place."

Case cheeriness, no obvious lies about her appearance, just the unquestioning assumption that she would be back at work presently. When he left her took her thought with him. It was the first time since the early stages of her illness that she had dealt with any interest upon the future. She began to wish to get well.

It was another week before she was allowed to read the newspapers. Alva made a rule of scanning them first to see that they contained nothing to upset her, but one day the nurse carried up one she had not read and Caroline found an account of a party Gwendolyn had given in her new home. Among the list of guests were very few persons she knew. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Seeman and that Florine Montross—she wondered what Howard thought of them.

She had never been able to understand his reason for marrying Gwendolyn. It had been too cruel, too cruel to try. Strange that she could consider it now without feeling that fierce stabbing pain in her heart. Was she, she asked herself, falling out of love with Howard? Oh, she wished she could—wished she could put his smiling face out of her memory—forget him altogether!

It almost seemed that she might accomplish this, for less and less often did she think of him during her long convalescence. But one beautiful autumn day when the sun poured like liquid gold out of a clear blue sky and she sat in her deck chair, relaxed and warmed by it, absorbing its living strength into her weakened body, her eyes closed in restful enjoyment of the contentment she felt, Howard came to call.

Mrs. Rutledge was away Mrs. Wade was back again for a few hours each day. She brought Howard's name to Caroline, but before the girl could decide what to do to Howard appeared on the back porch.

"I was afraid you would refuse to see me," he apologized. "So I followed your maid through the house."

Mrs. Wade was waiting. Caroline said: "It's all right, Jenny. Mr. Dunsforth will stay."

He came over and lifted her hand, bent his lips to its blue-veined whiteness. "I heard only today," he said brokenly.

It was as though the touch of his lips had cracked a shell, the shell that time and pride had been building around her heart. She could feel her love going out to him like a pent-up stream. It was a courting ecstasy, wiping out barriers, bearing down even the memory of sorrow.

Howard lifted his eyes to her face, saw the bright glow of rapture that transformed it, and had his answer.

"My darling!" he cried and folded her in his arms.

It seemed to Caroline that a curtain had been rung down between them and the world. Nothing mattered but this moment together. But talk could not be forever postponed. Howard began it.

"Let me tell you everything before you start thinking," he begged. "Whatever it comes to, Caro, dearest, we know that we love each other."

Caroline thought: "Yes, that can't be denied now." But she said nothing.

"Gwen doesn't figure in this," he said with a sudden sharpness. "Believe that, Caro. She only wanted to marry someone socially above her."

"But how could you, Howard?" It was a very human question and only slightly reproachful.

"Just the same mistake a lot of us make," he replied. "I was lost without you. When I came to realize that, I couldn't come back and ask your forgiveness, couldn't believe you would grant it. Then I suddenly found myself meeting Gwen several times a week. I didn't know why, but I've learned since that our dads had some sort of a business deal on and Mother was catering to the Hoffmanns a bit for Dad's sake."

"Well, of course, with Gwen at the house so much I found out that she was as much adrift as I. You know what I mean, Caro. The people she wanted to know hadn't taken her up. She was unhappy about it. I was so despondent I didn't care what I did. One night—I was a little tight—I got the idea that I might hand out a little of the happiness I couldn't find for myself to somebody else. I thought I'd give the town a jolt, marry Gwen and give her the chance she wanted. It didn't seem to me that I could be happier than I was. So I told Gwen what I had in mind—told her that I hadn't a spark of love for her—that I still felt about you as I always had, in short, that I adored you."

He paused, radiating an aura of pride in a love as great as his.

"You told her—that!" Caroline gasped.

"She agreed that it didn't matter, that she'd see I got excitement and interest in exchange for putting her in the social register."

"And have you got it?" Caroline asked, a trifle maliciously.

"Oh my dear, I got excitement! It's been ghastly living with her. Please don't think I want to abuse her unjustly, but her idea of excitement and interest is incredible. Some of the people she's dragged into the house!"

"You mean that even as your wife, she failed in her ambition?"

Miserably. She'd made the mistake of associating with a bad crowd—the Seemans and their friends—she couldn't wash that off.

Caroline recalled the Seeman's party that she had attended, in particular the man who had kissed her. She couldn't feel sorry for Gwendolyn. It hadn't been fair, her marrying Howard, accepting him when he was tight and knowing—she must have known, Caroline told herself fiercely—that Howard would eventually seek the girl he loved with nothing but a silly quarrel standing between them. She might have told him to wait—given him a chance—but no, for the sake of nothing more than selfish social aspirations she had gobbled him up in a hurry. And then she hadn't been able to achieve the thing for which so much happiness had been sacrificed.

"It's so... so wickedly wasteful," she said despairingly. "Unless a new thought had come to her, unless she loves you, Howard."

"She doesn't. She knows as well as I do that it's all a horrible mistake. But..." he stopped. Caroline was looking at something behind him. Her expression caused him to turn. Mrs. Rutledge was standing in the doorway, held motionless with surprise at seeing him there.

He greeted her cordially, instantly assuming an artificial manner of ease. Her eyes went past him to Caroline as she spoke to him. The girl's flushed face alarmed her.

"I'm afraid you've been over-excited," Caroline, she said rebukingly.

"It was just what I needed," Caroline smiled.

Alva faced Howard with a quiet firmness that astonished him. "I'm afraid I must send you away," she said politely. "It is time for Caroline to go upstairs."

Caroline objected, but Howard, who had no wish to displease her mother, agreed that she ought to go and asked if he might return the next afternoon. Caroline granted the permission, although she saw her mother's face cloud over with disapproval.

Alva went with him to the front door. She did not immediately return. When she did Caroline was in a fever of anxiety. "What did you say to him, Mother?" she demanded.

"I told him," Mrs. Rutledge answered Caroline, "just how ill you'd been and that you must not be excited."

Caroline's eyes searched her face for signs of evasion. "You did not tell him to stay away, did you?" she asked pleadingly.

Alva came and put an arm around her shoulders. "My dear," she said gently. "I shall not treat you as a child. But do you realize what this means—seeing Howard again?"

"I think so—yes, I do!" Caroline replied, and her answer revealed a mounting confidence. "It means that Howard and Gwendolyn have reached an understanding. Their marriage is a failure, as they might have known it would be. And I'm partly to blame. I was beastly to Howard that day I broke our engagement. It's no wonder he didn't come back to me. How could he expect me to be reasonable?"

"Oh, my dear, aren't you just building up a defense for something you know isn't sound?"

"You mean—Howard's love for me?"

"Yes. I can't see how he could marry Gwendolyn Hoffmann if he still cared for you—unless he is utterly a cad."

"Please don't say that," Caroline protested. "I've grown to love you so, Mother, but I love Howard too. You just don't understand, that's all. He did it in a fit of despondency, with some crazy idea of sacrificing himself to make someone else happy."

"Is that what he told you?" Alva's voice was chill with contempt.

Caroline checked the hot protest that rose to her lips. "I have helped you to think as you do about Howard," she said, instead, "and you can't believe in him now. But you aren't justified in judging him so harshly. It isn't fair to me, either. It destroys so much—so much that's helped me to find peace these last few weeks. The change in you—I've felt as I used to about you, and that we were very close to each other. For a while... before I got sick... I don't like to say it, but she came to a stop, unable to find words that would not be too cruel to express what was in her mind.

"I know," Alva said quietly. "I disappointed you—bitterly. And I think I know how you feel. You say you love Howard—in spite of his faults. You expect me to understand that if you forgive him, those loyal to you will do the same. But you forget, dear, that your love blinds you. I did not judge him without cause. The very loyalty and understanding you expect from me compels me to tell you what I know even at the risk of destroying your... your faith in me."

Diet Is Factor In Treating Skin Ills

Proper Foods Play an Important Part in Cure of "Psoriasis"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

PSORIASIS is one of the common and stubborn disorders of the skin. For many years this disorder proved baffling to the doctors. But though the actual cause has not as yet been discovered, great progress has been made in its treatment.

Psoriasis is a chronic inflammatory disease of the skin characterized by dry and scaly spots. These spots are different from most skin disturbances in that they rarely have a moist surface. Dr. Copeland, Eczeema, for instance, has a moist or "weeping" and itching surface, while psoriasis is dry and does not itch.

Symptoms of Psoriasis

The disease may involve almost any part of the skin, but rarely affects the face. The most common sites are the elbows and knees. In the mild form, the skin becomes thickened and scaly. In the more severe form, circular patches appear in large areas all over the body.

These patches have a red base and are covered with dry, silvery, adherent scales. Heredity, nervous disorders and various constitutional disturbances are believed to be factors in producing the disease.

Though no definite remedy for psoriasis is known, relief is obtained after getting rid of all systemic disturbances and giving special attention to diet. In addition, outdoor life, abundant exercise, special exercises and certain foods are beneficial in the treatment of this disorder.

Of great importance in the study of the discovery that diet plays an important part in its treatment is the fact that from this affliction certain foods are omitted.

It is recommended that all foods which are rich in protein, such as meat, fish, eggs, soups, eggs, liver and kidney, be omitted. Every effort is made to keep the general health. Rest, meals, sleep and elimination are to be observed.

Salves and ointments are of value in some cases. They did all medication unless prescribed by a physician. In many instances a soothing ointment containing all amounts of tar is helpful. It could only be applied, however, if advised by the doctor who is familiar with your case.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. C. D. S. Q.—I have recently been advised by my doctor that I have shingles. What would you advise?

A.—For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A. B. Q.—Every morning I awaken with a severe headache which usually lasts for about an hour or so. This headache persists whether I eat before retiring or not. What would be apt to cause the trouble?

A.—This condition may be due to a number of causes. Make sure that the sleeping room is properly ventilated; however, avoid a direct draft or current of air. Keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

DAVEY PLANS REST BEFORE TAKING POST

Will Confer in Washington
With Relief Officials, Then
Travel to South.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—Conference between Gov.-elect Martin L. Davey and President Roosevelt, Public Works Administrator Ickes and Federal Relief Administration Hopkins will be held in Washington early next week, Davey announced today.

Proposed changes in personnel of the Ohio relief administration were expected to be discussed with Hopkins. While the governor-elect refused to indicate whom he might select as state relief director, there was a broad inference that the incumbent, Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson would not be re-appointed.

QUESTIONS UNANSWERED

The relief program Davey will discuss with the President and his advisers he was unwilling to reveal at this time, nor would he discuss any policies of his administration. He referred interrogators to the Democratic state platform and to his campaign speeches.

These policies were, however, threshed out by Davey and his cabinet, meeting for the first time in a hotel room here. All cabinet members were present except Alfred A. Benesch, Cleveland, director of commerce, who could not be present because of a case in federal court.

Davey will see Benesch in Cleveland in the next day or two, then leave for Washington. From there he will go to Florida to remain until after Christmas. In the Davey party will be his wife, his daughter, Evangeline; Frances Poulson, Democratic state committee chairman, and Mrs. Poulson.

The governor-elect promised to maintain a "hands off" policy with respect to organizing the next general assembly, convening a few days before he is sworn in on Jan. 14.

He stated emphatically he would not attempt to dictate the selection of the house and senate officers or the important committee assignments. Nor will he further attempt to get the emergency tax program through the present "lame duck" session.

"After my recent conference with Governor White," he said, "the word was sent out to my friends in the legislature that I desired them to support the governor's program. I shall go no farther."

LAUDS HIS CABINET

After introducing the members to newspapermen, Davey said of his cabinet:

"I think we have as good a cabinet as Ohio ever had. Of course, how we perform will determine how good we are."

All remaining appointments, he said, will be made upon recommendation of his patronage committee which Poulson will head. He promised to give the various counties representation according to their percentage of the state's total population.

Plans for the inauguration, he added, are in the hands of the Democratic state committee and Columbus civic leaders. If the weather is inclement on inaugural day, Davey will take the oath either in the Columbus auditorium or the Coliseum at the fairgrounds.

CLARK AT QUARTER

Three Detroit gridlers, including Dutch Clark at quarterback, Buster Mitchell at end and Ox Emerson at guard have been selected by the United Press for the all-American professional team. A strange thing has taken place in the selection with Jack Manders, Chicago Bear star, receiving an "Honor" berth. Manders is figured not quite good enough for the first team but he is named as the extra player so he could go in the game at any time to boot a field goal about any spot on the field.

BEARS SET FIVE

The Bears gained five places on the first team with Hewitt at end, Lyman at tackle, Kopechka at guard and Feathers and Nagurski in the backfield. The remaining first team spot went to Hein of New York at center, Edwards of Boston at tackle and Bates of Boston at halfback.

EAST AND WEST LINEUPS FORMED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Officials of the annual east-west shrine charity football game which will be played on New Year's day here, announced today that 14 outstanding college grid stars had accepted invitations to play in the classic.

The following men will definitely appear:

West—James ("Red") Stacy, all-Big-Six guard of the University of Oklahoma; Capt. Ray Fugua, end, and Clyde Carter, tackle, of Southern Methodist; Paul Sillosky, fullback, Capt. ("Woody") Ullin, tackle and Church Mucha, all-America guard of Washington; George Theodoratus, tackle, and Frank Stojack, guard, Washington state.

East—Pug Lund, fullback, Frank Larson, end, and Phil Bengston guard, all of Minnesota's championship eleven; Charley Harwig, all-America guard; Izzy Weinstock, fullback, and Miller Munjas, quarterback, all of the University of Pittsburgh.

GALESBURG, Ill., Dec. 6.—If Knox college is to set a new world's record in football it will have to do it without Coach Lloyd Burdick.

The former University of Illinois star quit his job to join the playing squad of the Detroit Lions, member of the National Pro football league.

HOME LOANS TOTAL NEARLY 21 MILLION

Loans totaling $20,973,872 were made to 6,707 distressed small home owners in Ohio during the month ending November 30th, according to the report of Henry G. Brunner, State Manager of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation given out today.

Despite the Thanksgiving holiday, 1,434 were disbursed during the week ending November 29th, according to the report. The total value of these loans was $4,607,969.

Of the above amount, $4,095,900 was covered by the issuance of the Corporation bonds exchanged with former mortgagees, and the balance of $512,069 was paid in cash to county treasurers for back taxes, for accrued interest on the bonds, necessary repairs, attorney's fees, and appraiser's fees.

HOW to DANCE

"The Continental"

In 8 Easy Lessons

The Fifth Movement

OUR delightful little romance, as told in the new ballroom dance, "THE CONTINENTAL," has now advanced to the proper time for the girl to express a little joy of her own volition.

She does so with a happy Skip Strut Step, as demonstrated in the above photograph of the FIFTH MOVEMENT. The gentleman, as you can see, hasn't much to do in this movement, save holding the girl's hand above his head for a pivot as she trips gaily around him. The whole movement is expertly done by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "The Gay Divorcee."

It is best described as a sort of skippy-hop, to tabasco tempo, and is done to Fox Trot or 4-4 time, as are all other movements of the dance.

One counts "One," the right foot is advanced and pointed, striking the floor on "One!"

A lot of things have to be accomplished before "Two!" The left foot is lifted from the floor. The dancer then hops backward with the right foot as the left is advanced and pointed, both the right and left foot hitting the floor on "Two!"

This same movement is repeated on "Three" and "Four," and continued for four bars of the music or sixteen counts. The girl must have completed her circle in those sixteen counts, and therefore must be very careful to make proper progress with each skip-strut.

It is a job that cannot last. It cannot last partly because Richberg has changed too many times, partly because no man can continue to be "Assistant President."

The title "Assistant President," ranks Richberg. He would like to shelve it. But he has one great goal ahead. He has told friends that his dreams are fixed on the August tribunal of the Supreme Court.

That Richberg has been intervening with the Federal Trade Commission to stop its complaints against monopolistic practices under NRA.

That Richberg took the side of the power companies as against municipally-owned companies during the electric power code hearing.

That Richberg is primarily responsible for approving the much-criticized aluminum code.

This poorly concealed coolness of his old labor friends rankles Richberg; and to rekindle the old warmth he has asked for a private meeting with executives of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L.

But he will probably fail.

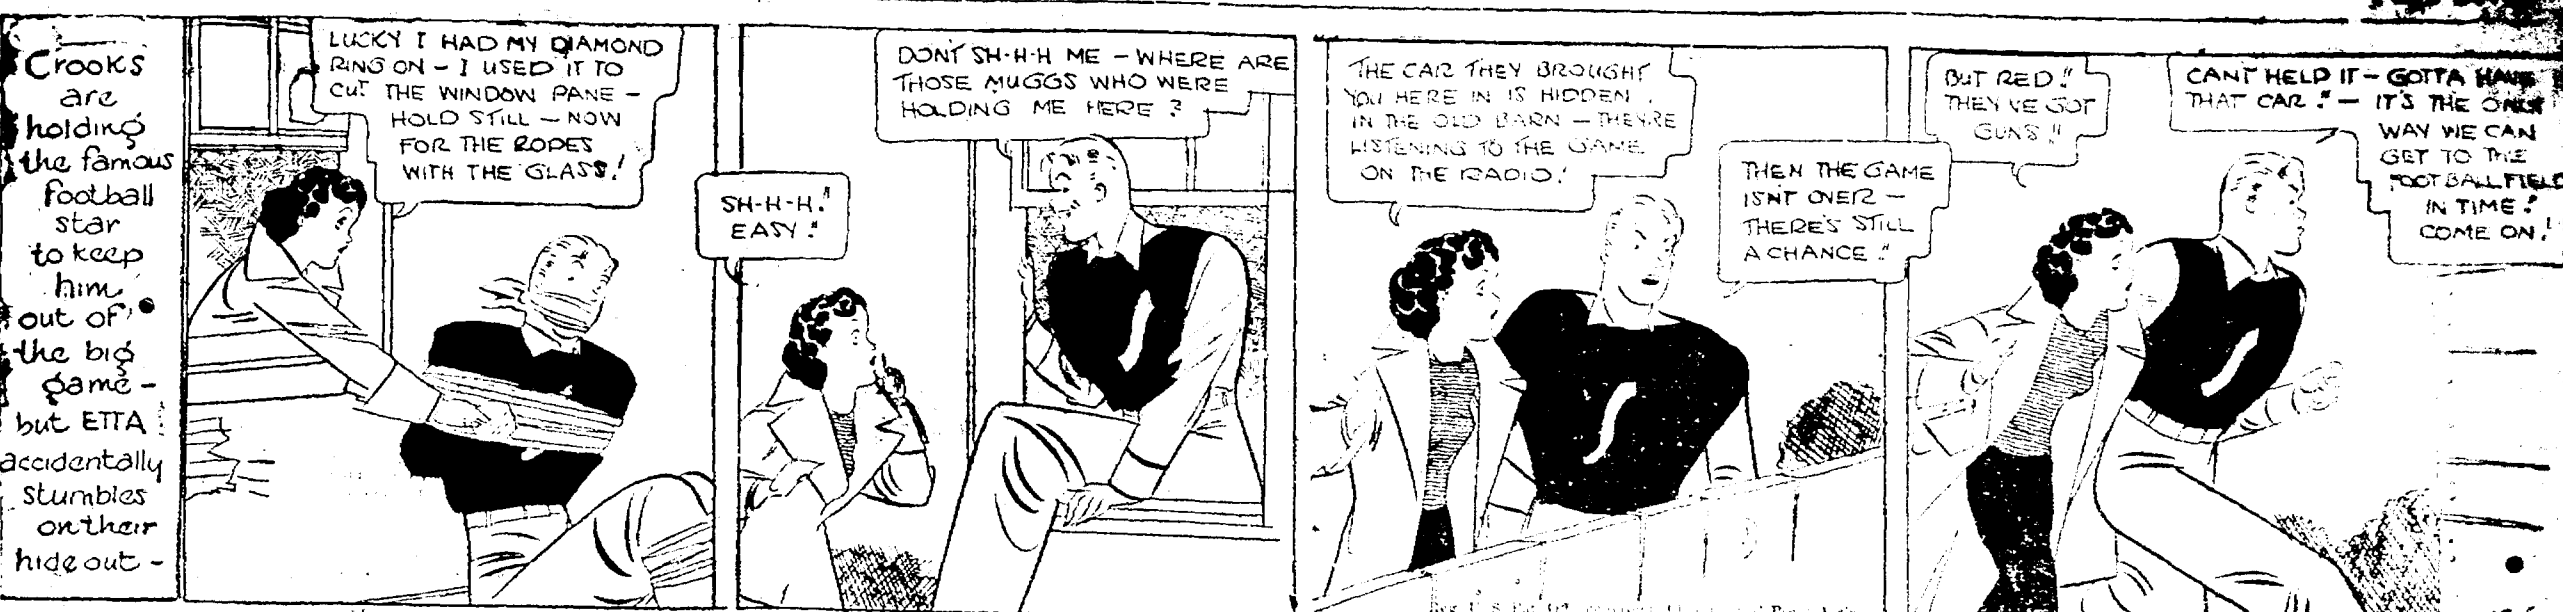

Assistant President

As "Assistant President," Richberg's job is that of chief coordinator of New Deal activities and chief sales of New Deal sanity to doubting business men.

The former is desperately needed, and Richberg should be able to do it well.

The latter he also does convincingly, but no one can do it with complete success. A few months ago when the NRA was bogged down with complete inertia, Richberg was busy assuring

SCIENTISTS SOLVE DEATH MYSTERY ON ISLAND

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Death today was revealed as stalking the modern Eden of the Pacific on Charles Island of the mysterious and little known Galapagos group.

Radio messages from Capt. G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles scientist-explorer, received at his offices here, from the cruiser Veho III, on which Hancock is taking a party of Smithsonian Institution scientists to the island, solved the mystery of the death of two men on lonely Marchena Island of the Galapagos.

The radio also announced the death of Dr. Frederick Ritter, German scientist, who went into a self-imposed exile on the islands with his common law wife, Frau Dore Strauch Koerwein.

At the same time it was revealed Baroness Bosquet Von Wagner, self-titled empress of the islands and her friend, Robert Phillipson, have been missing from the islands for more than five months and are believed to have perished.

IDENTITIES BODIES

Capt. Hancock, forsaking his beloved science long enough to turn detective, definitely identified the bodies found on Marchena Island some weeks ago as those of Alfred Rudolph Lorenz, once close friend of the Baroness, who accompanied her to the islands, and Trygve Nuggerud, a Norwegian sailor.

With Lorenz and Nuggerud perished a native, in the belief of Capt. Hancock, although the body was never found.

Residents of the islands, Arthur Wittner and his wife and two children, and Frau Koerwein, told the dramatic tale of the tragedy of the Galapagos to the scientists.

These five, the only survivors of the little colony on Charles Island, told Capt. Hancock how the Baroness had driven Lorenz from the island in an open boat without food or water on July 5.

Lorenz later picked up Nuggerud and the native boy and set out for Chatham Island in the hope of reaching the mainland from there.

Twenty-one days later an abandoned boat of the trio was sighted from Charles Island, the radio message declared.

Shortly after driving out Lorenz, the Baroness and Phillipson departed from the islands. No trace of them has been found since that time.

Residents of the islands told Capt. Hancock, who had visited Marchena and identified the mummified bodies of Lorenz and Nuggerud before coming here, that the trio apparently had been dashed on Marchena's rocky shores by a storm, one of their boats being wrecked and the other swept away.

Dr. Ritter, who died of sunstroke on November 21, had been on the island since 1928, when he came here with Frau Koerwein to establish a modern Eden amidst the black volcanic rock.

Dr. Ritter left his opera-singer wife in Berlin when he came here with Frau Koerwein, wife of a Berlin gymnasium operator.

Back of the haziness, however, there looms already the broad outline of a cohesive whole. How his plans will be put into effect, Mr. Roosevelt has not yet decided. Just what will be done, on the other hand, he has pretty clearly in his mind.

ECONOMIC PLANS READY, IS REPORT

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL TRAIN, Dec. 6.—President Roosevelt has completed the basic structure of his economic program for the nation in 1935.

Under this program, the New Deal next year will swing around a central axis of a giant combination housing and work relief plan.

There will be additions, and revisions of the setup as now planned. Much polishing up remains to be done. The details are in what

Announcement

At the End of 40 Years in the Jewelry Business we are compelled to Close Out everything. Not only do we face the expiration of our lease in the early Spring, but we had to acknowledge that our physical powers are waning seriously. You can imagine that this decision was by all odds the most weighty of our career. "What are we going to do?" is the first question our friends ask when we confided our problem or asked for advice. We do not know, neither will we worry about that for the present. NOW, we must get rid of everything and get away,—and if you should question our sincerity just look at the prices we are quoting. No profits here. Another thing. We are putting this sale on ourself—saving you the high cost of promotion. Naturally, these ads will be minus High Sounding phrases, superlative adjectives and eye-catching scare heads. Space so used by others will be utilized by us to enumerate the long list of unheard of bargains from our tremendous stock. OUR STOCK IS TREMENDOUS. Therefore, it is plain to us, as well as to you, if we expect to dispose of this immense quantity of merchandise it would be necessary to sacrifice until it hurts. And if you wish evidence to verify our honesty and sincerity of this conclusion, just look at the prices on this page and look at the prices in our windows.
